FOR NEXT GOVERNOR OF PENNSYLVANIA

ADJT. GEN. D. H. HASTINGS,

Subject to the decision of the Republican State Convention.

GOOD roads would be worth hundreds of dollars to the farmers of Lycoming county just now in getting their products to market.

THE New Jersey House of repesentatives has passed the ballot reform bill. The bill is expected to pass the Senate next week.

A Tennessee editor has called a man a liar, a coward and a scoundrel. This probably suits the latter better than if he had been asked to pay up.

A LOCAL news agency in Boston says that the annual salary list of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad Company has been reduced $500,000, and that other expenses have been cut down a million.

THE McKinley bill revises the tariff by adding $12,000,000 more taxes to the necessaries of life. McKinley doubtles thinks the surplus will be able to stand it by the time the present Congress adjourns.

THE proposed tariff on imported hides is condemned by the members of the Boot and Shoe Workers' International Union, and preparations are under way for a public protest by the craft against the imposition of any duty.

The other day a Minnesota clergyman traveled 30 miles, made 6 calls, visited 2 schools. gave an afternoon lecture and shot 7 jack rabbits, all between sunrise and sunset, and he said it wasn't a good day for pastoral work either.

It is a curious fact that the Curragh of Kildare, which is a common just outside of the village, is the only piece of real estate in Ireland for which no rent is paid. It is used by all the residents of the locality as a feeding ground for cattle and goats.

BRAZIL will publish the new Republic's Constitution; and after it has been discussed its adoption will be determined by a vote of the people. As the Constitution is as nearly as possible like that of the United States, Brazil will make no mistake in deciding to sail under it.

PATERNALISM AND ITS PERILS.

From the Washington Post (Dep).

Outside of certain public objects in which, as a commonwealth of States, the people are jointly interested, and the jurisdiction of which reposed in Congress by the Constitution, the Federal Government cannot go without venturing upon doubtful and dangerous ground.

The Constitution was adopted in order to form a "more perfect Union' than it had been possible for the confederated States to enjoy; to establish justice through various judicial tribunals and otherwise; to insure domestic tranquility by removing the causes of discontent that had hitherto existed, and guarding against their recurrence; to provide for the common defense through the organization and maintenance of land and naval forces; to promote the general welfare through a just system of taxation, the coinage of money, the regulation of commerce, and other well defined means; and, finally, to secure the blessings of liberty that had just been won through the declaration and accomplishment of American independence.

The work of the convention would in all probability have come to naught and the contemplated union been defeated had the broad and indefinite constructions then been put upon the meaning and intent of these organic laws that have since arisen to distract the public mind.

It was once accepted as a cardinal doctrine of our political faith, and such is still the conservative sentiment of the country that the best government least felt by the people. Of later growth is the astounding heresy that it is the duty of the government to make itself felt everywhere and on all occasions; to fasten its tentacles upon the people in all directions; to extend the ramifications of its machinery into every department of human activity, and to make itself the master rather than the servant of those who create it.

There are men of statesmanlike pretenses in and out of Congress who seem quite ready to surrender all the rights reserved to the States under the Constitution, and to exchange popular sovereignty—the vital essence and crowning glory of the Republic—for a condition of vassalship to centralized power at Washington.

To these the paternal theory is the panacea for all the troubles that beset us.

It is argued that because the General Government was originally invested with the control of the Post-office Department, it should therefore be given the ownership and management of the telegraphic service, though, between the two, there is no close or logical analogy.

It is assumed that because provision was made in the Constitution for the regulation of commerce between the States years before a locomotive engine had ever been heard of, and when the only commerce between the States was along the coast by sea, or by rough wagon roads to the interior, therefore the Government should exercise an autocracy over the vast system of railway transportation that has since covered the country with its net-work.

The advocates of paternalism would not only extend the control of the Federal Government over the railroads and telegraphs, but even gather into its all-embracing arms the common schools of the several States and crowd the express companies and savings banks out of existence, on the revolutionary principle that destruction to competition is the life of trade, and the assumption that the people, left to themselves, are incompetent to manage their own affairs.

They would go so far as to make the Government the private banker for the people, and the warehouseman of the nation's products.

It is held, indeed, that the Government may do anything and everything under the general-welfare clause of the Constitution that it might do were State lines entirely obliterated and the people subjects, instead of citizens.

These are perilous departures to take. It is time the strict constructionist were called to the front again.

Thirty years ago the paternal theory was but a cloud upon the horizon no bigger than a man's hand. To-day it is large enough to cast a shadow and create an apprehension, lest the boasted sovereignty of the people gradually crumble away and the wholesome aggressive enterprise of individual combination cease to be a factor in our national development.

The more the people consent to depend upon the government at Washington to do that which it is their own duty and right to do, to that extent will their self-reliant energies be impaired. They can manage their own schools, operate their own telegraph lines, run their own railroads and their own elections also, for that matter, without the officious interference of Federal power.

It is not for their interest to become mere hangers-on and stipendiaries of the Government. It is not to their interest to aid in building up a gigantic bureaucracy to overshadow the land. It is enough that they are menaced with a civil pension list. It were inconceivably worse if the paternal theory were extended to the commerce and business and education of the country, to entail another army of dependants upon the public.

The great corporations have their evils and abuses, but they also have their inestimable uses and blessings. Let them be placed under all needful restriction, but beware of seeking relief through a concentration of monopolistic power in the hands of the Federal Congress.

It is a fundamental axiom that the people should support the Government rather than the Government support the people. It is by this anchorage that the Government must hold fast if it is to subserve the noble objects for which it was ordained. Drifting hence, it will inevitably drift into danger, disaster, and decay.

IF you want to get married over in Jersey you are all right. The Jersey state legislature killed the marriage license bill and Camden is at the same old stand.

Dunning Through the Mails.

There is a law of Congress against sending postal cards through the mails containing printed or written matter of a "libelous, scurrilous, defamatory or threatening character or calculated and obviously intended to reflect injuriously upon the character or conduct of another." The penalty for a violation of the law is a fine not exceeding $5000, imprisonment for not more than five years or both fine and imprisonment. In St. Louis an indictment was found against the man who sent to a debtor a card containing this reading: "You owe us $1 80. We have called several times for same. If not paid at once we shall place same with our law agency for collection." A suit followed on the ground that the card was intended to "humiliate and injure the person addressed in public estimation." Judge Thayer sustained this view and held that the jury would be warranted in so finding.

—There is nothing mean or small about us. If an exchange sees fit to reprint a small item from the DAILY NEWS and give no credit we never complain. But we do most emphatically object to a paper like the Williamsport Sun reprinting a column article—word for word—from this paper and give it as an Associated Press special dispatch, as that self-same paper did with the Andrews hanging. Such pilfering is not only rascally but an imposition on the Sun's readers.

New, but Nameless Club.

A new Club was organized in Bellefonte last night. J. C. Meyer, Esq., was elected President; John Bullock, Vice President; Frank Lukenbach, Secretary, and J. C. Strohm, treasurer. Thus far the Club is without a name and, as the members are desirous of having something that would sound nice and be applicable, they will thankfully receive suggestions for a name. Call up Mr. Frank Lukenbach at Reynold's bank.

Patrolman G. Bigler Meek.

Officer Meek was born at Pine Grove Mills, Centre county, and after attaining sufficient age worked on a farm in summer and taught school in winter. These pursuits he followed until he came to Altoona in March, 1885, since when he worked at car building in the freight shops until appointed on the police force by Mayor Turner, he being re-appointed by Mayor Burchfield.

A Lumber Boom.

The Sugar Valley Journal says; A syndicate of eastern capitalists have purchased seven thousand acres of timberland below Woodward, Centre county, and purpose building a branch railroad to Coburn, on which to ship the lumber. They expect to have about fifteen years work cutting and getting out lumber.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, April 14, 1890.

The Senate to-day concluded the Montana contested election case by voting to seat the Republican Senators. This action was anticipated from the first.

Secretary Windom gave the republican caucus committee, which has for several days been engaged in preparing a silver bill which would receive the support of the republicans in both Senate and House, his views on the subject Saturday. He still believes that the bill prepared by him and which is now in the hands of a House committee, would prove entirely satisfactory if enacted into a law, but he expressed his willingness to support any other measure that would appear to offer as good a solution of the question. The committee is to report to a republican caucus to-night, which will probably decide upon the outlines of a silver bill to be pushed through Congress at once. The ultra silver men are clamoring for outright and absolute free coinage and the indications are that the bill agreed upon will give it to them, in effect if not in name.

It has been proposed to put the Fish Commission under the control of the Agricultural department, but Fish Commissioner McDonald is bitterly opposed to it. He wishes to retain his present independent position of not being under the control of any department, and making his reports directly to Congress. But it strikes most disinterested people that the Commission ought to be under the supervision of one of the Government departments, and the Agricultural would seem to be the proper one.

Secretary Proctor is out of the city today, and Gen Grant, the newly appointed assistant secretary of War is acting Secretary.

The friends of Chicago here are happy. The Senate committee has made a favorable report on the World's Fair bill, with several minor amendments, and in all probability it will be passed by the Senate this week.

Senator Sherman's anti trust bill, or rather the substitute that the Judiciary committee reported for it, and which the Senate passed last week, is not well received by the members of the House, and it is extremely doubtful whether it will ever get before the House. The reason for this is that the bill will not, in the opinion of experts, hurt any of the existing trusts or prevent the formation of new ones.

Senator and Mrs. Manderson celebrated their silver wedding last Friday night by giving a reception to their friends.

A very interesting ceremony took place in the White House at noon Saturday, when the President presented to to Mr. Joseph Francis, the inventor of the first life saving car, the gold medal authorized by act of Congress of August, 1888. Mr. Francis is 89 years old and very feeble. He has received medals and decorations from a number of foreign governments, but this is the first recognition he has ever had from his own Government, notwithstanding his invention has been for years used by our life saving service.

The Three Americas' Congress will formally adjourn on Thursday, and on Friday the members will leave here for a tour of the South lasting until the 10th of May. One of the latest recommendations of the congress is for the chartering of a system of international banks.

Mr. J. Edgar Engle, assistant chief of the Record division of the Pension office, and who had his pension rated, has been dismissed.

It begins to look at last as if there was a prospect of getting a good national banquet law through Congress. The Torry bankruptcy bill has been favorably reported to the House. This bill protects the interests of both debtor and creditor and will, if it becomes a law at the present session, go into effect Nov. 1, next.

The President has received a gold headed cane, cut from the yoke which supported the Independence bell in 1776. The cane came from a citizen of Philadelphia.

The McKinley tariff bill will be reported to the House to-morrow, and ex-Speaker Carlisle will present the democratic side of the question in an elaborate minority report against the bill. The democrats have suddenly lost their courage and decided that they would not prepare a tariff bill. When the debate on the bill is to begin will be determined upon later on, but it is perfectly safe to say that it will not be as extensive as that upon the Mills bill in the last Congress, and it is also safe to announce in the most positive terms that the McKinley bill will become a law at the present session of Congress, democratic statements to the contrary notwithstanding.

Senator Quay has returned from Pennsylvania and is besieged by his friends for information on various political questions, and they seldom go away without it.

PENNSYLVANIA SERVICE PENSION BILL.

An act granting Service, Per Diem, Widows and Soldier's Orphans Pensions and providing means for the payment thereof; applying the precedents of all other wars of the United States to the soldier of the war of the rebellion; and to redeem the promises made to the soldiers when they enlisted:

Section 1.—That every soldier, sailor or marine, whether officer or private, who enlisted and was sworn into the military, naval or marine service of the United States in the war for the suppression of the rebellion and who was honorably discharged therefrom, shall from and after the passage of this act receive a service pension of eight dollars per month, and in addition thereto a per diem service pension of eight dollars per month, hereinbefore provided; it being the meaning hereof, that every soldier, sailor or marine as before sygnified shall receive a pension under this act as follows:

For 1 day's service,			$8.01	per	month.
For 30	"	"	8.30	"	"
" 90	"	"	8.90	"	"
" 1 year's		"	11.65	"	"

And so proportionately for whatever number of day's service was rendered.

Section 2.—The provisions of this act shall not in any manner interfere with any pension now being received, but shall be in addition thereto: nor shall it in any manner interfere with the right to any increase, re-rating or other right now had under the pension laws in force before and at the passage of this act.

Section 3.—The limitation of claims for arrearages of pensions is hereby repealed.

Section 4.—That the army, navy and marine service rolls and an honorable discharge therefrom shall be the only evidence required to entitle any living soldier to the service and per diem pensions granted by this act; and the Commissioner of Pensions is hereby directed to formulate such rules for the identification of such living soldiers as may be necessary; and the Secretary of War and the Interior are hereby authorized and directed to increase their clerical forces to the extent necessary so that within one year from the passage of this act every soldier entitled to a pension under its provisions shall be in receipt of the same; and the money necessary to pay for such additional clerical force is hereby appropriated from any money in the United States Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

SECTION 5.—In case of the death of any soldier who is drawing or has drawn a pension under this or any other law of the United States, no matter what the cause of death, the widow of said soldier while she remains such widow be entitled to the widow's pension of twelve dollars per month; and any minor child or children of any dead soldier shall be allowed the sum of five dollars per month each until such child or children attain the age of eighteen years; and those women who were regularly employed as army nurses, shall receive a pension of twenty-five dollars per month.

SECTION 6.—There shall be appropriated from the annual revenues a sufficient sum to pay the amounts due under this act; and if the surplus revenues are not sufficient annually to pay the amounts hereby appropriated, then the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and directed to have issued annually, full legal tender paper money of the United States of America," in sufficient quantity to pay the deficit; and all penalties for counterfeiting and all provisions for renewing any mutilated or worn out United States paper money shall apply to the pension money hereby created.

The above is the Bill approved by the Pennsylvania Service Pension Association. Address all correspondence to the Chairman.

GENERAL NOTES.

A milk white deer was shot recently near Mount Katnadin, in Maine.

Travelers in Russia are now obliged to have their photographs annexed to their passports.

In a garden at Palatka, Fla., is the foilwing legend tastefully done in living green: "Have Cleveland, 1892."

At Norristown Pa., there is a saloon keeper who refuses to sell liquor to a neighbor because of the receipt of an anonymous letter directing him not to do so.

John Vanderburgh and wife, of Fenton, Mich. are a remarkable couple. They have lived together for 66 years without a quarrel that amounted to anything.

Millie Whitehead, a negress of Rome, has been awarded a verdict for $4,500 against the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus Railroad, on account of the killing of her husband.

An altogether incorrigible thief was arrested near Richmond, Ind., a day or two ago for the theft of a suit of clothes. He is 85 years of age and has spent more than half of that time in jail.

Two Mormon elders were taken from a house at Gaffney, S. C., by 12 disguised men and beaten, rocked and ordered to leave the county at once. As the elders ran off several shots were fired after them.

In making soundings for the new railroad bridge at Astor, Fla., the engineers struck an artesian flow of sulphur water in mid stream. It comes from a depth of 50 feet and is quite a curiosity.

An English photographer claims to have obtained a photograph in which the natural colors were reproduced when the exposure was made, by accident, just at the moment when there came a vivid flash of lightning.

A Reynolds, Ga., woman has a baby 6 days old, perfectly formed, in good health, and in peace with all its surroundings, whose face can be covered by a silver dollar, and which will barely turn the scales at 1½ pounds.

Dr. McDow, the murderer of Captain Dawson, of Charleston, is still practicing medicine in that city, having an office in the very house where the crime was committed, and next door to Captain Dawson's home, now occupied by his widow.

There is said to be a big opening in Madras and Bombay for American dentists. Madras is a city of 300,000 inhabitants and has not a single American dentist there. Stress is laid on the word "American," as their skill is proverbial in foreign countries.

Though acquitted of any criminal intent in shooting Manley Strickland dead in the woods near Tonawanda, N. Y., Arthur C Padman, the young Englishman who shot him, is insane with the idea that the dead boy comes out of his grave and appears to him.

Forty tons of hay have lodged on an island in Snake river near the mouth of Sinker creek, Idaho, having been swept away at the time the dam went out of the Bruneau. The entire stack is together just as it was when it left the banks of the Bruneau, some 40 miles distant.

Peter Weishaupt, aged 33 years, joined the Economites' society at Economy last February. Then he became anxious to break their law of celibacy, but couldn't wed and remain in the society. This so preyed upon his mind that he became insane, and yesterday he hanged himself.

The barn of Patrick Maloy, near Chest Spring, Cambria county was struck by lightning at 12.30 o'clock Wednesday morning, and entirely consumed. The live stock and farming implements were saved, but a great deal of hay and grain was destroyed. There was an insurance of $500 on the building.

Filled With Specimens.

A passenger car attached to an eastbound freight train yesterday was a curiosity in that it contained a remarkable collection of samples. It was from the Cumberland Gap, Kentucky, and in the car were specimens of the mineral and agricultural wealth of that region. Specimens of coal, iron, manganese, mineral paints, clays, timber, barks, limestone, sandstone, etc., were arranged attractively. The Cumberland Gap region is being developed by capitalists, and they have certainly a rich field.

Death of John Lucas.

Mr. John Lucas, a brother of Mr. A. B. Lucas, of this place, and who resided on Marsh Creek, Curtin township, died on Tuesday night at 11 o'clock. Mr. Lucas was an old soldier and his death was the result of disease contracted on the battlefield; his health has been bad for years. He was a farmer, was married and leaves a wife but no children to mourn her loss. His age was about 42 years. The funeral will occur today at one o'clock p. m. Our sympathies are with the afflicted ones.

"Why don't he take Hood's Sarsaparilla?" is the general inquiry of friends when a person suffers from any disease of the blood.

What a Boy Should Know at Eighteen.

President Dwight in the April Forum.

A youth of eighteen who is to have the best chances, should know how to study, and how to do it with enthusiasm also, because he has learned the lesson at least five years before.

Enthusiasm, guided and controlled by knowledge as to the use of the powers, is the true life of a living man, alive with the spiritual forces. Everything else is in sleep, or is dead.

I make my starting-point, and my guiding thought, the thought that he should learn how to study, and should gain enthusiasm, at the beginning.

In the first place, as I think, the study of language may be most hopefully started in these earliest years. The boy moves joyously where the man finds only labor and weariness. The children of our household to-day may gain the same thing that we gained, when they are ten or twelve: and the progress is like the joyful song of their childhood, when they are led along the rational method. They grow up into French or German, as it were, as they grow up into English, and talk, and read, and sign in these languages, just as they do in their own. Why should they not breathe in enthusiasm with every breath of their learning? It was with a great price, indeed, that we obtained this freedom. But they were free born.

Let me say here, that, in my judgment, every boy who has the best chances ought to have the mystery of the French or German language (I should say of both) before he is eighteen years of age --a mastery kindred to that which he has of English. He should, also, have such a knowledge of Greek and Latin as will mean power in and over those languages, and will enable him to read them with ease and with satisfaction as he enters upon his college course. The man who knows the ancient languages as he ought to know them, will never contend against their holding a place in the education of all widely educated and roundly educated men.

The boy who has the best chances ought, in the years between twelve and eighteen, to be set forward on his course in history and the beginnings, at least, of the literature of his own language.

My feeling is that the boys who have the best chances should know something of music and should, at least, see the opening of the door toward art tudies. The opinion is now well established, I suppose, that all persons can be instructed in vocal music with a measure of success. I believe that the same thing can be accomplished in the line of instrumental music.

That the mathematical studies should be pursued energeticaly before the youth has reached the age of which we are speaking, I may add, is admitted by all. The men of the former generations and the men of our day agree at this point.

THE M'KINLEY BILL.

It is said that when the new tarif bill is brought up in the Republican side to move an amendment to put sugar on the free list, while others will insist upon an increased duty. There will also be a proposition from the same side to restore hides and tin plate to that free lis, coupled with an amendment to take the duty off canned goods. That there is some plausibility in these statements is not open to dispute, but that these several propositions will succeed, or even operate to defeat tariff revision on the lines agreed upon by the Ways and Means Committee, is not all probable.

There should be no attention paid to the demand for an increased duty on sugar, nor for the opposite extreme of no duty at all. It is the Sugar Trust that insists on keeping the rates as they are —the same monopolists who induced the Democrats to frame the sugar section of the Mills bill so as to suit the refining interests. The duty on sugar is out of all proportion to other duties, and since it has failed to encourage sugar production to the extent anticipated it can be judiciously and consistently reduced. Neither is there any valid reason for continuing hides on the free list, since no one pretends that the great body of consumers has been benefited in the least by free hides. As to our export trade, the moderate duty imposed will not interfere with that a particle since there will be a rebate equal to the duty on all leather for exportation. The outcry against the duty on tin plate is but a continuation and repetition of the free-trade song, and will make no impression on those who support the tariff from principle. It may be possible that the Senate will substitute a specific for ad valorem duties in the sugar schedule, as it is held, and justly, too, that there would be less liability to fraud if this change were made. The fact that the McKinley bill is likely to be antagonized by the Mills bill, or a measure substantially like it, will go far towards determining the attitude of every Republican when the question comes to a final vote.

An exhibition game of base ball in Boston on Thursday drew 20,000 paid admissions and 10,000 people were turned away, and it wasn't a good day for base ball either. Maybe this isn't going to be a great base-ball season, though.

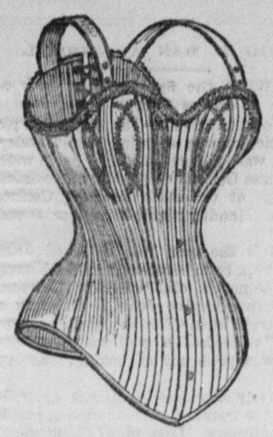
The breath of a chronic catarrh patient is often so offensive that he becomes an object of disgust. After a time ulceration sets in, the spongy bones are attacked and frequently entirely destroyed. A constant source of discomfort is the dripping of the purulent secretions into the throat, sometimes producing inveterate bronchitis, which in its turn has been the exciting cause of pulmonary disease. The brilliant results which have attended its use for years past properly designate Ely's Cream Balm as by far the best and only cure. 2 w

Costiveness can be permanently cured by the use of Baxter Mandrake Bitters For sale by F. P.'s Green.



DR. WARNER'S celebrated Coraline Health Corsets have one peculiarity which pertains only to corsets of their make. The bust retains its shape to the end, and the corset imparts to the wearer a well-proportioned and beautiful figure. The corset is boned with Coraline, a substance superior to the finest whalebone. Made in short, medium and extra long waists.

There are many imitations, but you will find "Dr. Warner's Coraline" printed on the inside of every genuine corset. They are sold by your nearest dry goods dealer.

PACKED IN A BARREL.

A Ghastly Consignment Received from the Old World.

A MURDERED MAN'S BODY.

It Is Discovered Through a Cablegram Received by a Shipping Firm in New York—An Awful Sight When the Cask Was Opened.

NEW YORK, April 16.—The body of the murdered man, Meyer, which was found in a cask supposed to contain chemicals, Monday afternoon, is now stowed away on the top floor of the appraiser's office, at 402 Washington sreet. Deputy Collector Burr is in charge of the cask and every one is awaiting instructions from Washington and from the police authorities in Denmark.

The Danish consul in this city cabled late Monday night that the body had been found, and is hourly expecting instructions through Count W. de Sponneck, the Danish minister at Washington. At the consulate it was said that it is very likely that the body will be examined and then buried here.

The cask in which Meyer's body has been found arrived in this country as part of the cargo of the steamship Thingvalla from Copenhagen in February last. The cask was billed as containing a sample of some chemical compound, and invoiced at $10 value. Under the description given the article was dutiable at 25 per cent.

It Looked Innocent.

The cask was marked Beresford Brothers, Racine, Wis., via New York, and in a corner were the letters "T. S.," supposed to stand for "T. Schmidt," the name the shipper of the cask gave the express agents at Copenhagen.

The cask passed through the hands of the custom house inspectors, samplers, examiners, chemical experts and appraisers. The bung was taken out of the cask and the contents were sampled, but nothing but lime was found.

The cask went to the appraiser's storehouse and has been there ever since Feb. 6. Wells, Fargo & Co., who shipped the cask from the other side, sent several letters to "Beresford Bros." at Racine, but received no answer.

Toward the end of last week Funch, Edye & Co., the agents in this city of the Thingvalla Steamship company, to which line the Thingvalla belongs, received the following cablegram from the police authorities of Copenhagen:

The First Intimation.

"Investigate if one barrel plaster shipped Thingvalla from here Jan. 13, parcel list, lading one, addressed Beresford Bros., Racine, Wis., is still in custom warehouse, New York. Is supposed to contain body of killed man. If found, make necessary arrangements to secure. Will probably be wanted returned. Wire result as quick as possible."

This was the first intimation that anything was wrong with the cask. It seems that a soap maker named Phillipsen, a citizen of Copenhagen, was arrested recently, charged with having burned his factory and defrauding his creditors. Phillipsen confessed after arrest that in a quarrel he had murdered a clerk named Meyer, and had then packed the body in a cask and shipped it by the Thingvalla to this country.

Funch, Edye & Co. laid their telegram before the appraiser yesterday afternoon. After some searching the cask was found. It smelled of coal oil and looked greasy, as if it had been used in a soap factory.

A Sickening Odor.

It was of the shape and size of an ordinary oil barrel. The address, "Beresford Brothers, Racine, Wisconsin," was written in a bold, clear hand, in common black marking ink.

An examination disclosed the fact that as usual the custom house samplers had merely removed the bung, leaving the head of the cask undisturbed.

The cask was removed to the top floor of the appraiser's office, and then, in the presence of Dr. Jewett, of the appraiser's department, and Special Agent Wilber, John Kevlin, a laborer employed by the department, knocked out the head.

A sickening odor at once pervaded the room. The head of the cask was off only about half a minute, which sufficed for the officials to get a good sight of the body in it.

A Horrible Sight.

The body was in a sitting posture with the head tipped slightly to one side. The right hand was held up above the head. All the body except the face was covered with the plaster.

The face was that of a man about 40 years of age, with close cropped brown hair and beard. A plain gold ring was on the second finger of the right hand.

Dark marks were distinguished on the neck, as if the man had been strangled. The cask was practically air tight, so that the body is well preserved.

Special Agent Wilber immediately notified Inspector Byrnes of the discovery, and also the treasury department and the Danish consul.

The treasury department will notify the state department, and the cask and its contents will then be in custody of that department. The Danish government will probably request the reshipment of the cask, to be used in the trial of Phillipsen.

It Was for His Health.

NEW YORK, April 16. — Ex-Alderman Thomas Rothman, of the aldermanic board of 1884, known as the famous boodle board, presented himself at the district attorney's office and asked to be informed as to whether there was any charge against him in connection with his career as alderman. He was informed that there was no indictment against him. He told the district attorney that he could be found in this city at any time, as he intended settling down here again. At the time of the investigation into the official acts of the aldermanic board of 1884 Rothman sold out his business and sailed for Germany, where he remained until now. He asserts that his visit to Germany was for his health.

A Seething Mass.

ASHLAND, Pa., April 16.—The fire which was discovered Monday in the culm banks, at the Big Run colliery, is still raging fiercely, but as yet has not reached the mine, and the officials are making surveys to ascertain if the North Ashland creek can be turned on the fire to prevent its spreading. The bottom of the bank is a seething mass, and it will require the removal of many tons of culm before the fire can be reached.

Died of Heart Disease.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 16.—Edgar Cotrtell, of the firm of Cottrell & Leonard, dealers in furs, died suddenly Tuesday morning of heart disease, aged 38.

THE LOYAL LEGION.

Its Reunion in Philadelphia Attended by a Notable Gathering.

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—On the Union League front Monday night there gleamed in letters of fire a welcome to the Loyal Legion of the United States and flags fluttered as if it were a holiday.

Tuesday the Loyal Legion met. It had its inception in Philadelphia in a body of officers who organized to attend the funeral of Lincoln. It has grown till it reaches every state and territory. Tuesday five thousand military officers, gathered from ocean to ocean, shook hands, touched elbows and swore allegiance anew to the flag.

Ex-President Rutherford B. Hayes is the commander-in-chief. The Union League club was thrown open to the visitors and all the principal buildings were decorated with flags.

The following was the programme: The commandery-in-chief met at 10:30 in the rooms of the Historical society. The session was secret. In the afternoon, from 1 to 3 o'clock, there was a concert at the Union League club by the Marine band, of Washington, under the leadership of Professor Sousa.

In the evening the exercises commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary were held in the Academy of Music. Maj. Gen. D. McM. Gregg presided. Gen. Rutherford B. Hayes made an address. The oration was delivered by Brevet Maj. Gen. Charles Devens, of Massachusetts. After that the veteran elocutionist, James E. Murdock, gave a series of readings.

Addresses were then delivered by these gentlemen: Hon. Benjamin F. Tracy, Maj. Gen. John M. Schofield, Maj. Gen. O. O. Howard, Brevet Brig. Gen. James A. Beaver, Brevet Brig. Gen. Horace Porter, Maj. Gen. H. W. Slocum, Maj. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, Brevet Gen. Walker Swayne, Brevet Brig. Gen. A. R. Marshall, Brevet Brig. Gen. C. F. Manderson.

President Harrison, who was expected, did not attend, as he will come to Philadelphia on Decoration day as the guest of Meade post.

ALBANY LEGISLATION.

The Weekly Payment of Wages Bill Passes the Senate.

ALBANY, April 16.—In the senate the protest of the American Federation of Labor against the repeal of the $2 a day act was received and referred.

Bills Passed—Mr. Roesch's weekly payment of wages bill; yeas, 19; nays, 7—the negatives being Messrs. Deane, Donaldson, Erwin, O'Connor, Robertson, Van Gorder and Vedder.

Mr. Currier's, giving the Erie board of supervisors power to protect duck and fish in Erie county, except in the Niagara river.

Mr. Riley's, for the monthly payment of Troy city officers.

In the Assembly.

ALBANY, April 16.—Upon the receipt by the assembly of a message from the senate asking it to concur in the resolution recalling from the governor Mr. Fassett's bill increasing the salary of the mayor of Elmira from $300 to $1,500, Mr. Bush objected, but the resolution passed.

Mr. Mitchell's bill, allowing Theresa to spend $10,000 in building a town hall, passed.

He Is a Desperate Criminal.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 16.—James, alias Silver, Downing, the notorious insane burglar, who has just escaped for the fourth time from the Morristown (N. J.) state insane asylum for insane criminals, has sworn to kill Detective John Taylor, of this city. When Downing made his second escape in August, 1887, he came to this city, where he was arrested by Taylor after a desperate struggle, for larceny of clothing. As he was leaving for the Morristown asylum he swore he would return and kill Taylor. In September, 1889, word came that Downing had again escaped. Taylor remembered the threat and was on the alert. On Sept. 26 it was learned that Downing was in Buffalo and Taylor, by a clever ruse, surprised and arrested him. He was again sent back to the asylum. It is believed that Downing is again on his way here to carry out his threat, and Taylor is on the lookout for him. Downing is a most desperate criminal.

A Monument for Randall.

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—A movement to raise funds for a monument to the late Samuel J. Randall has taken substantial form here, and will doubtless result in the most creditable achievement of the object. It is proposed to raise the money by subscriptions from the citizens of Philadelphia, who have been so faithfully and honestly represented by the deceased during his long term of public service. The subscriptions will be received at the newspaper offices, and it has been proposed to place the statue in front of the Public Buildings or in the park. The matter was discussed at a special meeting of the Randall association, and will be energetically pushed by that organization.

Schaefer and Slosson Matched.

CHICAGO, April 16.—Schaefer and Slosson have signed an agreement to play 800 points at fourteen inch balk line in New York during next June for a stake of $500 a side, a wager of $1,000 and an emblem of the championship of America, to be presented by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company.

Editor Godkin Arrested.

NEW YORK, April 16.—E. L. Godkin, the managing editor of The Evening Post, was arrested on a warrant charging him with criminal libel on the complaint of Peter Mitchell, a lawyer. Godkin was arraigned in court later and gave $500 bail to await examination.

They Ate Wild Parsnips.

HAGERSVILLE, Ont., April 16.—The family of William Nicholson, a farmer, were poisoned by eating wild parsnips which they took to be carrots. One boy aged 10 has died, and a girl of 13 is in a critical condition. The others will recover.

WASHINGTON EVENTS.

The Appropriations Committee Honors Its Dead Colleague.

EULOGIZING MR. RANDALL.

A Memorial Adopted Setting Forth His Great Services and Paying a Tribute to His Honesty and Worth as a Statesman and Gentleman.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The house committee on appropriations, of which Mr. Randall was chairman for a number of years, met and adopted a memorial setting forth the great services performed by Mr. Randall as the head of the committee, and paying a tribute to his ability, honesty and worth as a statesman and as a gentleman.

"During all the years in which he served as representative and as member of this committee," the memorial goes on to say, "never for one moment was there the slightest suspicion that he was in any way connected with any job. Absolutely pure in his personal and pecuniary relations, he could afford to do many things and to subject himself to much opposition which otherwise would have been impossible.

His Sense of Duty.

"Intensely partisan as he was in his nature, his convictions and his hopes, he never permitted any difference of political opinions to invade the personal relations which he bore to his colleagues on this committee, nor to color his sense of justice to those with whom he served. He believed it was to the interest of the common people, without regard to party, that the expenditures should be kept within the necessities of the government, and that all reform was based upon a strict economy.

A Bright Example.

"It is therefore but the severest justice that we, who were his colleagues, should put on record our admiration for the qualities which he exhibited in this position. And yet there is in this grief only pride that in a long, laborious and illustrious public service there is no weakness, not one day for which any one need apologize, nor one act which requires explanation. Such a public life is full of inspiration to those who are called to discharge public duties, and is an exemplar after which young men may model themselves.

"It is therefore resolved that this minute be entered upon the records of the committee; that the chairman be requested to transmit a copy of it to the wife of our friend, to whom he will express our sympathy in that sorrow which no human affection can assuage."

Bills Passed.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The naval appropriation bill was called up and the house rejected the amendment of the committee of the whole striking out the clause providing for the construction of the three coast line battle ships, by a vote of 104 to 133, and the bill was passed. House bill limiting the cost of site and postoffice building at Scranton, Pa., to $250,000 was passed.

Whipped Till Insensible.

WASHINGTON, Ind., April 16.—David Horea, an old and respected farmer of Barr township, was taken from his house by a masked mob on Sunday night and whipped into insensibility, over 100 blows being administered. Horea caused the arrest of a local politician at Connelburg last week on a charge of attempting to buy votes, and it is believed that the whitecap outrage is the outgrowth of this trouble. The old man is seriously injured and may not recover. Several arrests will be made.

Gilmore Was Declared Winner.

EAST SAGINAW, Mich., April 16.—At the Armory, in this city, Billy Lavine and Harry Gilmore fought twelve rounds, Queensberry rules, with two ounce gloves, for 75 per cent. of the gate receipts. Lavine appeared in good condition. Gilmore, the noted lightweight, looked in good form. Gilmore was declared winner on first blood and ninety clean hits, Lavine getting first knock down and ninety-five clean hits.

An Earthquake and a Wreck.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 16.—The steamer San Juan, from Panama, reports the severest earthquake shock ever experienced on the isthmus since 1882 as occurring recently. The shock lasted five seconds. On Feb. 12 Guatemala advices were that the steamer Shakharah, bound from San Jose for Hamburg, went to pieces on the rocks near Acapulla. The cargo, consisting of 19,000 sacks of coffee, valued at $400,000, was lost.

BRIEF MENTION.

The body of Meyer, a clerk who was murdered by Phillipsen, a soapmaker at Copenhagen, was found in the New York appraiser's stores, concealed in plaster in a cask shipped by the murderer to a fictitious firm in Racine, Wis.

A London newspaper contains an advertisement for non-union stone cutters to go to New England to take the place of strikers. It is signed by the "Free Stone Contractors' association of New England."

The supreme court of the United States reaffirmed the decision of the circuit court of California ordering the discharge of Marshal Neagle, who killed Judge Terry while defending Justice Field.

Mrs. Woodworth and George Erickson, of Oakland, Cal., have been proved to be false prophets, no great cataclysm having swept away that town and San Francisco, as they had claimed.

It is reported that the Grand Duke Constantine Constantinovitch, cousin of the czar, has been arrested in St. Petersburg for connection with a revolutionary propaganda.

Secretary Tracy has ordered the steamer Alert, now at the Mare Island navy yard, to be put in condition at once to cruise to Behring sea and protect the seal fisheries.

Stevenson Archer, Maryland's embezzling state treasurer, was admitted to bail in the sum of $50,000. He is not well enough to appear before the governor.

Postmaster General Wanamaker has prepared a postal telegraph bill in which the rates are made higher than was proposed in the original measure.

Mrs. Peter Monahan and Herman Heinrich, of South Orange, N. J., were seriously hurt by being tossed and trampled on by an infuriated cow.

Mrs. Mary Soudt, of Pottstown, Pa., dropped dead after snatching two of her children from a railroad track in the face of an approaching train.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to blow up the state reformatory at St. Cloud, Minn., by means of three pounds of dynamite and the earning capacity of the roads greatly increased. The railroad consumers that have done all they could to foster this fight in order to get coal at a low figure will lose the vantage they have too long enjoyed." Mr. Bell said possession would be taken on the 1st of May. Next week new directors will be elected and Albert G. Yates will be chosen president. The present officials will be continued for the time being and perhaps indefinitely.

AS BIG A MAN AS JOHN L.

That Is What the Sports Think Now of James Corbett.

NEW YORK, April 16.—The general topic of discussion among sporting men Tuesday morning was the remarkable ease with which James Corbett disposed of Dominick McCaffrey at the Fifth Avenue Casino, Brooklyn, Monday night in a four round "go."

Corbett is the man who defeated Jake Kilrain in six rounds recently at the Young Men's Gymnastic club of New Orleans. "That chap can give John L. Sullivan a mighty lively hustle for the world's championship," remarked a well known ex-pugilist, now a professor of boxing, Tuesday morning.

This tersely expressed sentiment aptly illustrates the trend of opinion among pugilistic connoisseurs. Last night's four round contest was only a farce. McCaffrey wasn't "in it" at any time. His only object seemed to be to get out of Corbett's way.

Corbett showed a pretty and effective left. He had McCaffrey completely at his mercy, and could have punished him as he liked had he so desired. He displayed much cleverness and a great deal of agility, landing when and where he wished. What surprised the sports at first about Corbett was his peculiarly graceful form and rather refined face.

When he first stepped on the stage Monday night wiseacres shook their heads disparagingly. "He's no fighter; he ain't got the build," said one bull necked disciple of the manly art. Corbett did not, indeed, look massive, but he was well proportioned and his muscles finely developed. His tread was light and his smiling face looked full of confidence. He is just Paddy Ryan's height, 6 feet ¾ inch, scales at present 202 pounds and is 23 years old.

Though of a gentle cast of features, which some of the sports at the Casino took as a personal affront, it was soon proven that he of the gentlemanlike demeanor could shoot forth right and left with the force of a pile driver.

McCaffrey came on the stage a big favorite amid the plaudits of all assembled. Hardly a cheer greeted the stranger as he stepped gracefully to his corner. At the finish of the exhibition the applause and favor of the crowd, as usual, were all for the victor.

Ever since Corbett gained such a victory over the redoubted Polish fighter, Choynski, in California, his stock has been going up by big jumps. When he settled Kilrain so summarily recently, his fame took another great upward leap. Now he is riding on the sunny crest of the wave of popular approval. If he defeats Sullivan his cup of pugilistic glory will indeed be full.

Why the Deal Was Made.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 16.—Frederick A. Bell, senior member of the firm of Bell, Lewis & Yates, who have secured control of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg railroad and the Rochester and Pittsburg Coal and Iron company, has returned to this city from New York. He said the deal had been made because the firm want the control, through which it is expected that conflicting interests in the soft coal traffic will be secured. "It was a matter of self preservation to us. Our object is simply to stop a conflict which had no money in it for any of the parties involved. Being in a position to dictate the policy of the railroad company, we will be able to control the soft coal traffic coming north and out of that region. There will probably be a division of tonnage or of territory, and we will be able to meet our competitors in the east on even terms. It will be possible to advance coal rates to a paying figure, the coal will bring a better price and the local traffic of the various roads will be carried at better rates and the earning capacity of the roads greatly increased. The railroad consumers that have done all they could to foster this fight in order to get coal at a low figure will lose the vantage they have too long enjoyed." Mr. Bell said possession would be taken on the 1st of May. Next week new directors will be elected and Albert G. Yates will be chosen president. The present officials will be continued for the time being and perhaps indefinitely.

Is There Another Benwell?

BRANTFORD, Ont., April 16.—An interesting discovery that may still further complicate the Birchall murder case has just been made here. On the Commercial hotel register was the name of F. C. Benwell, which was supposed to have been placed there by Birchall's victim. It is now learned that it was written by another young Englishman, who left for this country a few weeks before the Princeton tragedy, and who, curiously enough, bore exactly the same patronymic as Birchall's friend. As Birchall has all along averred that the supposed murdered Benwell is still alive, it is likely an attempt will be made to identify the murdered man as the one who registered at the hotel here.

The Great May Day.

BERLIN, April 16.—The Volksblatt publishes the manifesto adopted at the meeting of the Socialist delegates which was held at Bale, Switzerland, on Sunday last.

The manifesto unanimously recommends the observance by the workingmen of Germany of May 1, provided an assurance can be had that no attempt will be made by the police to provoke a collision. The manifesto recommends that the day be observed as one of rest from toil, and that meetings be everywhere called to petition the reichstag in favor of the eight hour day.

An appeal, signed by every Socialist deputy to the reichstag, except one, who is imprisoned, has been addressed to the German workingmen. The appeal urgently calls upon the workingmen to avoid that conflict with the authorities which their opponents hope will occur on the occasion of the May demonstration.

Booth Says It's Not So.

DETROIT, April 16.—Edwin Booth said, in answer to the story that Lawrence Barrett had written to him of a relapse of his malady that would prevent his acting next season: "There is no truth whatever in the rumor. All my recent letters from Mr. Barrett have been most cheerful in tone, both as regards his physical condition and his outlook for next season. In fact, his more recent letters, and his last one in particular, dated Nice, which I received last week, are remarkably cheerful. I expect to see him on June 1, and there is no doubt about his being able to act next season."

Ran Into a Freight Car.

TROY, N. Y., April 16.—Late Monday night passenger train No. 34, on the Fitchburg road, while moving at the rate of thirty miles an hour, ran into a freight car near Rotterdam, derailing the engine, baggage car and sleeper. Engineer Billings and Fireman Roberback were crushed, probably fatally. So far as has been learned all of the passengers escaped with a severe shaking up. A wrecking train from Mechanicsville was sent to the scene. The loss to the railroad company will be heavy.

BONNER.

All persons interested in improving the blood of their horses should call at the Brockerhoff House stables and see the trottingbred horse Bonner His proprietors intend to have him kept for service. The pedigree of this horse as authentically traced is as follows:

The sire of Bonner was by Knickerbocker, whose sire was Rysdeckes Hambletonian, and the dam of Bonner's sire was by Messenger. The dam of Bonner was a Vermont Morgan whose dam was a Starr mare.

These horses are all world renowned as every intelligent horseman knows. The dam of Bonner trotted in 2.40 at the age of 22 years.

This horse has always been kept for service. However after one week's training upon the track, at Lewisburg he trotted in 2.58 and competent judges declare that if properly handled he would be trotting in the teens.

Bonner is a mahogony bay, will be 9 years old in May, and weighs 1000 lbs. He has bred colts that weigh 1400 lbs. and he has lighter offspring that are very promising for roading and for speed. f-20-3m

'STARTLE"

The proprietors of Bonner have also purchased Startle.

Startle is a light colored chestnut bay; he will be 5 years old in May and is sired by Bonner. His dam was a dark chestnut sorrei by Gold Dust, and his grand dam was of the Justin Morgan stock of horses.

Startle will also be kept for service and can be seen at the Brockerhoff House stables.

THEY SHOT TO KILL

And Were Terribly Successful and Now They Sleep Beneath the Sod.

On Saturday morning Mr. George W. Weiland, of near State College, aged about 60 years, took his rifle, fastened it in a vice and then taking a position in front of it pulled the trigger and shot himself dead Th cause o the suicide is supposed to have been family troubles

Mr Welland was a farmer and had a family o five cnildren—two of whom a son and a daughte rare school teachers. He was a brother of Daniel Weiland of Linden Hall. He was well known and his mad act caused considerable excitement in that community.

JOSEPH S. RAUDENBUSH, JR., of Laurelton, shot and killed himself on Sunday evening. He had been sick with a fever for about a week and Sunday evening was delirious. His wife went out of the sick room to get a glass of fresh water when Raudenbush got out of bed, went to the bureau and got his revolver and just as his wife entered the room placed the muzzle back of his ear and fired. This was about five o'clock and in two hours he was dead.

Mr. Raudenbush was one of the leading citizens of Laurelton, he having just a couple years ago erected a handsome residence, and large hotel and store house. He was a lumberman, merchant aad landlord and was conceded to be well off.

He was aged about 34 years, was married and had one child. He was a good business man and his sudden taking off is cause for deep regret.

A Gigantic Swindle.

Following a correspondent suggests one of the most unprecedented and unheard of schemes to rob the treasury of all the surplus that it now contains. We give his letter entire:

MILESBURG, April 11th, 1890.

HON. WILLIAM MCKINLEY, JR.,

Dear Sir:—There appears to be great dissatisfaction in regard to a Service Pension, therefore, I would suggest the following for immediate passage."

All honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines, to receive Ten dollars per month at the age of ninety-two (92) years, the same to continue during their natural lives.

This bill is very comprehensive and inexpensive, and I will assure you that it will give general satisfaction as the average age of a soldier is 57 years, therefore the cost will not be questioned by our good and liberal Republicans. This Bill should be introduced at once to insure a Republican successor to Mr. Harrison. The estimated cost of this is two and one-half cents per capita.

Fraternally yours,
N. BIERLY.

P. S.—Should it be defeated on account of expense, make the same payable ten days after death. N. B.

Was He Really Drowned?

The report that a man was drowned yesterday forenoon on the Lockport side of the river, above Hanna's, may be incorrect. At least nothing else has been determined in regard to it, and the Lockport people are of the opinion that nobody was drowned. The four men with the pike poles were William West, Joseph McGill, and another man, who ran up from down near the stone house, and William Hanna, who was sitting on a raft near the white house, but who had not seen any man on the particular raft alluded to and knew nothing of it until the other three came along and informed him of the alarm that had been made. But beside John Crowley and daughter there are several other parties on Susquehanna avenue who state that they distinctly saw the man fall from the raft into the water. However, no hat or other floating articles have as yet been discovered, and the circumstance is more or less enshrouded in mystery. —Lock Haven Democrat.

After Twelve Years.

About twelve years ago the house of Mr. D. G. Bush, in this place, was robbed of most of its silverware. At the time no trace of the robbers could be found. Afterwards a man named Ringold was convicted of another crime, and after being sentenced, acknowledged that he had assisted in the robbery of Bush's house, and that the silverware was hidden in the Gap below the toll gate on the pike leading to Milesburg.

The ground had repeatedly been hunted over—every foot of it probably—but never any silverware found, and the conclusion was drawn that Ringold told a fish story. A couple days ago, however, a couple of wood haulers, in coming down the side of the mountain, in said gap, displaced a large stone which disclosed a hole in the ground. Investigation was made to find what kind of an opening it was when lo and behold! there lay the silver stolen twelve years ago from the house of Mr. Bush. Spoons, cake dish, water pitcher, cream jug, sugar bowl, spoon holder, castor, and other things, all plainly marked and easily identified as the stolen property.

The stone, in being rolled away, had battered and dinged some of the larger pieces, otherwise the silverware was none the worse for its twelve year's storage underground.

—Thursday afternoon four track hands on the Summit division were on a hand truck on No. 2 siding of the T. & C. R. R., at the Summit, when the truck started down the grade. The men could not get control of it and it kept going faster and faster until it reached the main track, and as the switch there was turned off, the truck was thrown from the rails and the men from the truck. One man had his nose broken, another his arm broken, and all were pretty badly bruised. If the truck had gotten on the main track, with the accelerated speed bound to come, all four would likely have been killed. We could not learn the names of the injured men.

"Shorty" Bids Good Bye in Verse.

I suppose you will think I'm a very poor poet,
But you need not laugh—because I know it;
I've bid goodbye to Houserville—
To all my friends and the woolen mill—
But I'll never forget the friends I had,
Though some were good and some were bad,
For some of the boys along Spring Creek,
Sometimes got drunk and then got sick.
But that, you know, is nothing new—
It's nothing more than others do.
But we really never wanted to be bad,
For it makes a fellow feel so sad;
But you know it never lasts for long,
Whenever we do dosomething that's wrong.
But now I've left the old camp ground,
And will soon locate in another town
I've bid goodbye to Miller Jake—
Shook hands with Snyder for Barbara's sake.
Hugged the cook where I used to live,
And to Reub. Houser my old coat gave.
But with Monie, my pard, 'twas hard to part,
And, indeed, it almost broke my heart;
For we grew up together since we were boys
And together we shared each others joys—
But the best of friends, you know, must part
So I'll pack up my kit and away I'll start.
I hate to part with my old friend Sheets,
For he always was willing to stand the treats,
Whenever we happened out on a bun,
Or had gone to Bellefonte to have some fun.
And now I'll tell of another good fellow
I hated to leave, it was G. S. Keller,
But now I've bid you all good-bye—
While a great big tear rolls out of my eye.
Sometimes I've done what wasn't right,
Carousing around and getting tight;
But you read in the bible—at least you should
That it's never too late if you want to be good;
So I'm going to lead a better life,
And some day, perhaps, I'll get a wife.
So again I'll say goodbye to all,
For I'll have to stop or else I'll bawl;
No more I'll work in the woolen mill,
That's stuck in the mud in Houserville.

People Who are Doubtful.

Dr. Nevling, editor of the Karthaus Times, was in Williamsport last week and in conversation with a newspaper man in that city stated he was not at all satisfied that Andrews went straight to Heaven after the hanging. The Doctor was a good friend of the young lady whom Andrews murdered, and was the physician who made the examination after she was discovered murdered. He says that knowing what he does he is satisfied that Andrews died with a lie on his lips, and he is not willing to accept his statement that he was going straight to Heaven. The people of Karthaus and many other points take the Doctor's view of things.

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. Are You Nervous?

Next to blood, kidney and liver afflictions, nervousness and nerve irregularities are the most common.

Within the last twenty-five years the number of nervous diseases has increased largely, and the medical fraternity have given them a great deal of attention.

As to the causes of nervous affections, their name is legion; high living, dissipation, irregularities of diet, late hours, overwork, great grief, the high-pressure mode of life, with its ceaseless round of activity and exertion, calling for constant expenditure of nerve force, all tend to depress and exhaust the nervous system. The merchants bend for hours over their books, or are whirled at lightning speed over a country unknown to their fathers; the student burns freely the "midnight oil," while the housewife, in her efforts to keep pace with the requirements of modern society, calls into active play every fibre of the nerve system. What is the result? All over the land medical men are battling with nervous dyspepsia, nervous headache, nervous weakness and in many cases with general nervous prostration, oftentimes developing into paralysis.

To regain health you must correct all that is wrong in the nerve centres, and then all the various troubles arising from their diseased condition will disappear.

In Brown's Sarsaparilla you have a nerve tonic and nerve food which supplies the waste tissues. Remember that the blood, taking up the sound material from the healthy stomach, feeds every nerve and fibre of the human body, and in no other way can reconstruction and improvements in the system go on. Brown's Sarsaparilla will deliver the food pure and healthy into the blood.

MRS. DORCAS STONE, wife of the well-known railroad contractor, who has operated all over New England, became afflicted with that disease so very common among women. She says: "Yes, I do know what nervousness means. I have had it in its worst forms. I could not sleep, could not follow any line of work; the cry of my babe struck harshly upon my ear, the shutting of a door quick or the fall of a book or any unusual noise upon the street would give me a start. It seems to me, now that I look back to it, as though I lived for years as some hunted animal might live. I mistrusted every one and was possessed of a constant and nameless fear. Physicians told me the nerve centre was affected and when my food would not digest; when it soured on my stomach; when my appetite became capricious, they said I had nervous dyspepsia. I tried several physicians and adopted every thing suggested by friends, yet my nights were wakeful ones, and my days those of torture. One day Brown's Sarsaparilla fell under my notice; I began the use of it, and as a result the nerves were returned to their normal condition, as were also the digestive organs, and a perfect and permanent cure was the result."

It was a Surprise.

Rev. E. W. Koontz and family were taken by surprize on Tuesday evening, the 8th instant, by upwards of forty members and friends of Bellefonte who entered the parsonage without any warning and gave them a complete of pounding of sugar, coffee, flour, and many other good things too numerous to mention. They brought with them two of the largest Cherries in the county who understand how to run other things as well as steam engines. Many thanks to all the kind ones.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The Harvard Quartette.

Surely the ladies of the W C T U could feel complimented by the large audience gathered in the court house on Friday night to hear the Harvard Quartette, the last of the series of Star Course Entertainments. The house was crowded almost to its utmost capacity.

As to the entertainment it was first-class—could not have been better. Mr. Morris, as 1st tenor; Mr. Kendall, as baritone; Mr. Burnham, as Basso, and Mr. Collins, as 2nd tenor, made up the Quartette and it was certainly a quartette of voices well trained and cultivated. Their superiors, if indeed, their equal, have never appeared before a Bellefonte audience.

Mrs. Dainty, as an accomplished ventrilloquist and reader, is a decided success and was applauded heartily after every rendition and encored successively. Her voice is strong, clear, well modulated and under perfect control.

Miss Lufkin, as a soloist, both on the piano and cornet, is a complete master. The Cornet solo rendered by her Friday night was one of the best we ever heard. All in all it was a first-class company and the W. C. T. U. are to be congratulated on their success in obtaining it to close their course.

A Good Magazine.

The "White House," to most people, means a flat, two-story, upicturesque white house, as the view generally given of it shows the severely plain north front; but there are many other views of the home of our Presidents, and we are indebted to Demorest's Family Magazine for laying them before us. The May number of this popular Magazine literally takes you to Washington and shows you the "White House" from every point of view, as well as its charming surroundings. The seventeen beautiful illustrations will give you a better idea of the nation's Executive Mansion than you could possibly gain by a personal visit; and never before has it been so fully and beautifully illustraied. This feature alone will make the May number of Demorest's Family Magazine have a phenomenal sale; and those who are so fortunate as to possess it, will find in it a fund of information and amusement, containing, as it does, nearly two hundred illustrations, embellishing such articles as "A May Festival in Florence," "Transformations of a Butterfly," "The Stellar Universe," "The Fairies of the Plains," "Modeling in Glass," "Kindergarten Work and Play for the Home," etc. Besides, in this number Ella Wheeler Wilcox commences an intensely interesting story; and two oil pictures, "I Won't!" and "I Will," make it doubly attractive. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York.

Not Violating the Code.

A tramp who was making his way around to the back door of a house on Third avenue, found a man sawing wood in the rear yard, and after gazing at him for a moment called out:

'Are you workin' for old clothes?'

'No sir,' was the reply.

'Hain't sawing wood for your dinner?'

"No, sir.'

'Haven't quit the purfesh?'

'No, sir.'

'Say, what are you doing at that wood pile, anyway?'

'Working at my business. I saw wood for a living.'

'Oh! Then you don't belong?'

'No.'

'And it's regular?'

'Yes.'

'Then that's all right, and I've no fault to find. When I walked in here and saw you at work my heart jumped right into my mouth, I didn't know but it was one of the boys making a break and calling down the purfesh. Regular, eh? Well, you keep right on, and never mind me. I'm after a warm meal and a respectable looking suit for Sunday wear, and if she's the right sort of a woman I'll hit her for half a dollar in cash beside.'

HER WAITING.

'Her wedding gown--her wedding gown" said little Miss Barton, softly to herself, touching with tender fingers the fleecy whiteness that lay upon her lap as she sat in her low, brown rocking-chair.

Two great tears rolled swiftly down her cheek and sank into the gown's dainty fairness.

'June has come again, John, she whispered: "and I've been waiting, dear, these twenty years. Ah, these twenty years !'

Then for her Miss Barton did a most unusual and astonishing thing for she laid that uncut gown upon the table beside her, picked up the gray kitten frisking at her feet, and cried as if her heart was breaking.

All Brockport knew about Miss Barton's "waitin." Even the smallest child had heard of how the little gallant William and Mary had sailed away one fair June day, never to return and save for the fact that shortly after her departure she had been sighted by a home-coming vessel, no faintest tidings had ever come to those aching hearts that waited in that thrifty little fisher village by the shores of the blue blue sea. Among the crew there was a sailor lad named John Darrell. He was a fine, manly young fellow whose dearest hope was to make gentle Mary Barton his wife when that last voyage should be over.

It had all been planned so many, many times. He was to give up his seafaring life, and they were to make their home with the Widow Barton in the tiny vine-shaded cottage high upon the cliffs, and he was to be to her, indeed, a son in her old age.

Mary Barton never forgot the look in those blue eyes as he held her close in the last parting, nor the half choked blessing with which he bade her keep up a brave heart till they met again, and the weary waiting was ended.

And for him, and him alone, she had waited. The villagers spoke of it as "little Miss Barton's waitin'."

As the years slipped by, and it was felt for a certainty that never would that gallant ship come into port, other lovers came to her. For though the roses faded from her smooth cheeks and silver threads rippled through her dark hair, she was still a woman beloved by all and fair to look upon.

But gentle and firmly she said them nay. "He has reached the surest of all havens," she would answer to their pleadings, "and I shall wait, as he left me, till my call comes to join him.' And one by one they gave up asking.

"I shall love you, Mary, till the day of my death!" Martin Deering, the great man of the town, once said to her, tears filling his honest eyes as he thought of his own motherless girls and the home that he'd hoped her presence would brighten. But as a time went on and he grew to see that the lost man was her one love, he bravely conquered himself, and was to her what she most desired and needed --a true and faithful friend.

Then her mother died, and still she clung to her solitary home; her days spent in work and errands of mercy; her evenings sweet with the memories, of days that were no more.

With the winter a stranger had drifted into Brockport, an architect, and a clever and rising young fellow.

Now it was well known that before the June roses faded he would carry away with him pretty Mattie, Martin Deering's youngest daughter.

Perhaps it was the sight of her dainty wedding gown (for she loved Mattie, and would miss her sorely), or the sight of those pinkly blowing, ever fragrant June roses shyly clinging to the low door way, and the sound of the distant sapphire, foam tossed sea as it swept with mellow roll into the shore, that made little Miss Barton cry so sadly that fair summer morning.

Outside, far down upon the smooth, gray beach, round about an old lifeboat, children were merrily playing. Rosy, healthy, coarsely-clad littles ones, bubbling over with the wine of life. Among them was Bub Symonds. Bub was nine years old, and the eldest of five, flourishing olive branches. A sturdy, honest, freckled-faced boy, whom, Granny said often, made her "puir head greed sair."

But Granny was old and cross and Scotch, and Bub felt sometimes as if nothing he ever did or could do would please her. But mother was always suited, and, after all, who could equal mother ?

He had cared for baby this morning, and waited upon her till the chubby miss was overcome by slumber, then brought her home over the hot sand in his stout, little arms.

They didn't ache much now, he thought, as he watched the children at play, for mother had brushed the wet hair from his tired forehead and bidden him "rest a bit."

Presently over the sands, pipes in their mouths, laughing and talking, some fishermen came strolling.

'Here, Bub,' cried one as they passed him, 'this here's meant for you !'

Into his lap fell the loveliest bit of amber that the boy had ever seen. How it gleamed, and sparkled, and shone ! He was speechless with delight. The children crowded round him with admiring looks and exclamations.

'What'll you do with it. Bub ?' they asked.

A sudden thought struck him.

'I'm goin'—I'm goin' to give this straight off now—to little Miss Barton !'

There were no dissenting voices as he turned and ran off through the sands, fast at his legs could carry him.

Some twenty minutes later a flushed and breathless tow-headed boy stood in front of Mrs. Symonds' open doorway.

'Mother,' he panted in an exciting whisper, 'you'd better go right up to little Miss Barton's—she's most cried her eyes out. Give her this," and he laid the cherished bit of amber upon the table.

Without a word Mother Symonds put her flat-iron on its shelf, tied her blue checkd apron over her head and started. Bub ran after, tucked his love-gift into his mother's hand, and then went back to mind Granny and the baby.

* * * * *

'Come in,' said Miss Barton, cheerfully, in answer to her visitor's hesitating knock. There she sat quietly sewing. True, her eyes had distinct red circles around them; but her voice was as sweet as ever. Mrs. Symonds felt her alarm subside.

'Bub sent you this,' she began, disclosing the little gift. 'He was passing and he said he looked in—he wanted me——" she stopped confused. 'He was worried about you,' she said at length, in a troubled tone.

'Sit down,' said Miss Barton, quietly, to her, as she took the proffered gift.

'Dear child !' with an admiring glance —'he told you that he saw me crying. Was that it ? (with a faint blush). 'And you came all the way to see if I needed any help—you good woman !' said Miss Barton, simply.

'That's about it,' admitted mother Symonds, greatly relieved.

'It was the thought of a wedding that was to have been,' said Miss Barton, softly. 'I am making Mattie Deering's wedding gown, you know. She is just the age I was to be ; and the month is the same. I seldom give way,' she said, half apologetically, though her firm lips quivered. 'Besides, tears, you know, are unlucky over a wedding gown.' And then her kind neighbor saw how sweet Miss Barton's smile was.

'You're one of the Lord's own, my dear ; and there'll be greater love for you in that land where there's neither marrying nor giving in marriage, where your faithful waitin's over,' said the younger woman, tenderly, to her. Then she turned and went out of the rose-covered door, home through the summer noon.

Every body said that Mattie Deering's wedding was the prettiest that Brockport had ever seen. And they had trimmed the little wooden spired church till it looked for all the world, as one child said, "like a great big nosegay."

Afterward there was a great gathering of the town folks at Martin Deering's house to bid the pretty bride God-speed, and chief among them was little Miss Barton.

"Bless her, she looked as pretty as a picture!" said one bedridden old man whom she'd stopped to see on her way home, and to whom she brought some wedding dainties.

"Bless her!" he said to his good wife, "there couldn't none of 'em beat her, I know, 'cepting it might be the bride!"

'She did look so sweet when she come here in that shinin' gray gown, with the pink in her cheeks and the white spray posies on her breast and in her hair," he added.

And it really did seem as if the rest of them thought so, too.

After the wedding came days of damp and misty weather, with rain in sudden angry showers. And all this time it seemed as if the frowning sea was running itself back only to dash in sullen roars with greater violence upon the far-stretching coast.

The clouds hung black and threatening above. Here and there desolate sea birds flew to hidden convoys in the rocks seeking shelter, their frightened cries making still more desolate the dull-gray days.

'Dirty weather ahead,' the old tars said, and shook their heads as they spoke.

One by one over the mass of heaving seething waters the little fisher boats came steadily sailing home,

And on the night of July 6, 197—, the storm burst in all its violence.

In the cottages and along the shore, how the men, women and children prayed that night 'for those in peril on the deep,' as lurid flashes of blinding light to e the sable heavens asunder, and showed the sea lashed by the winds into a seething mass of awful, towering, foaming hills of water ! How they prayed and peered anxiously out from time to time into the inky darkness.

Upon the beach fishermen waited in little groups ready to man the life-boat should need of it arise, though the chances were very slender for aiding in that terrific storm.

Far beyond and sharply to the left where some ragged rocks lifted their black heads, a steady golden, gleaming star, the beacon-light, shone forth. Slowly the night wore on.

Just before daylight in that hour which of all otners is the darkest, a slender stream of red fire pierced the darkness, followed by a faint booming sound. Faces blanched, hearts throbbed fearfully among the watchers. Again the red flash, followed by anothe boom.

'My God !' cried an old man, 'tis a sinking ship !'

Sick with terror they watched and waited while the life-boat was manned and the men made ready.

A few hurried directions, and all was done.

'Who goes with me, lad ?' cried one young fellow jumping in.

"God bless you, Tom!" cried a clear, high voice. "I'll care for your mother if any thing happens to you!" It was little Miss Barton who spoke, and she had crept down by herself in the darkness and storm to watch and wait with others.

The lad started, waved his cap, and under cover of the night hastily wiped away the tears that did honor to his bright eyes.

Amid the low sobs of women, "who watch and weep," the strong boat was silently filled, and pushed off from the shore.

Ah! indeed are the hearts true and brave that beat beneath the rough peajackets of these "toilers of the sea." Content are they with so little, so willing to risk the earthly life for the brother in need. Is it not an oft-told story I wonder to write of a waiting like this? Who does not know it all, even if he has not seen and felt it?

The groups of praying, waiting, watching women, some upon their bended knees murmuring their heartfelt petitions, others clinging together and calling aloud to the Ruler of all peoples.

The dull, throbbing heartbeats, rising with the wind's shrieking, falling with the ocean's sobbing roar. In your face the blinding, cutting gusts of rain. Below you, around you clinging, drifting, wet and shifting sands, chains of flaming light and the roar of Heaven's artillery above you! Who, I say, does not know about it?

With leaden feet the moments dragged themselves along. At length there came the return signal, and, oh! the straining of eyes, the breathless watching as that precious freighted boat was seen threading the billows.

Three rousing cheers for the brave lads, and then—out upon the beach ready hands lifted three weary, fainting men and a senseless woman, holding to her breast a little drowned baby.

'She was an Italian brig,' said a fisherman, briefly to them. 'All the rest were drowned.' And he turned away.

'Poor souls ! poor souls ! sighed little Miss Barton. Then, as the poor mother was lifted up—'take her to my home,' she cried and lead the way. Others pressed forward eagerly and before the morning broke over Brockport the wanderers were cheered, comforted and cared for in the cottages.

It was noon of the next day when little Miss Barton, standing in her door way saw a group of men coming down the cliff road. As they drew nearer she saw by the expreisson of their faces that they were bringing her news of some sort.

By her little white gate they waited, and one, an old man, whose son she had helped to save from himself came slowly up the pathway ? She ran to meet him.

'What is it ? Tell me quickly !' she cried. 'I can listen, for widow Morse is caring for the sick woman.'

The old fisherman lifted his slouch hat and left the warm sunshine to play about his scanty, gray locks. His weather-beaten faced toward her.

'You saved my boy when the drink was makin' a devil of him, and my Mary's heart was breakin' under it. Bless you !' he added, reverently. The group at the gate drew near.

'There ain't one of us as hasn't known and felt your goodness in some way. Us—our wives—our children. And now !'—oh, the gladness in his voice—'we've come to tell you (me and my mates) the blessedest news to all o' us.'

'There is one as we all thought dead. There is one as sailed away years ago.' Miss Barton caught hold of his arm.

A death-like pallor spread over her face, and she seemed about to sink to lie earth. But in one moment she rallied again, and turned her face full to e speaker.

'Man,' she cried, in a tone that had never been heard from her lips before —'man !'

'There is one as was saved again last night from the sea, as has been workin,' slavin,'prayin', to get to ye these twenty years.' He got no further.

With a cry that those around her never forgot, little Miss Barton fell upon her knees, and, liting her arms Heavenward, gave thanks to God aloud

They took her to the cottage that held him a little later, when her strength returned, for joy seldom kills. There a worn, scarred, gray-bearded man, the lover of her youth, awaited her. No one saw that meeting.

But when, with his hand clasped by her strong ones, he told the pitiful story of their capture by the Malays in foreign seas, the long years of slavery and privations of the few survivors, their sad deaths, his escape and the wreck in sight of land, those that heard him though they shed many a tear, thanked God from honest hearts that the end had come to little Miss Barton's 'waiting'.'—Grace Virginia-Halsey, in Christian at Work.

Knights of Golden Eagle Installation.

On Tuesday evening Bellefonte Castle No. 357, Knights of the Golden Eagle was initiated and the officers elected at the organization of the Castle a couple of weeks ago were installed. J A Grenoble, of Spring Mills Castle No. 169, presided as Grand Chief and was assisted in the initiation and installation exercises by C A Krape, Wm P Alexander, Wm Krape, R S Bonslough, J R G Allison, M. D., D L Richards, F W E Snyder, Thos Duey, H O Duck, H H Osman, Geo Frank, M. D., David Bunnell, J I Condo, and J J Taylor.

The following Castles were represented: Nos. 169, 280, 176, 301, 219, 325.

The application for charter contained 33 names, and the three Degrees were conferred on 58 candidates.

Following are the names of the officers installed:

Past Chief—R S Brouse.
Noble Chief—E S Wian.
Vice Chief--H K Hoy.
High Priest—E J Purdue.
Venerable Hermit—Geo Taylor.
Master of Records—Geo T Bush.
Clerk of Exchequer—E B Rankin.
Keeper of Exchequer—Jas Alexander.
Sir Herald—H C Crissman.
Worthy Bard--M M Lindsey.
Ensign—Theo Haupt.
Esquire—E E Herr.
First guardsman—Sam Shirk.
Second guardsman—Thos Buchanan.

After the installation, which, by the way, passed off very nicely, the whole party—about 90 in number—repaired to Ceader's and Auchenbach's and partook of choice refreshments prepared for the occasion. The Bellefonte Castle starts out very auspiciously and promises to grow into one of the largest and best in the State.

He Fell Off a Raft And Was Drowned

A man, whose name is unknown, was drowned in the river on the Lockport side between 11 and 12 o'clock Thursday forenoon, above Hanna's near what is called Monseytown. He was seen to fall from a raft into the water by John Crowley and daughter, from their house on Susquehana avenue, this city, just opposite the place where the sad accident occurred. They shouted and hollowed to the people on the other side and four men with pike poles were seen to hurry up to the place from below Hanna's and make search, but in vain, for the body of the unfortunate man. When seen to fall he appeared to be alone and came up twice and sank and on coming up the third time caught hold of the oar blade and clung to it for a moment, but just then a floating log came along and struck the oar blade and the man disappeared, that being the last seen of him. What his name was or where from, we do not know. The supposition is that he was a man who was stationed there to take care of the rafts and prevent them from breaking loose, as no one has yet been missed from Lockport.—Lock Haven Democrat.

In Other Counties.

Mrs. Jane Morrison, of New Germantown, Perry county, died on April 6, aged 75 years. She was the widow of W A Morrison.

Recent deaths in Juniata county are B F Bender, of Tuscarora township, aged 46 years, and John Reeder, of Lack township, aged 45.

Iron ore mines in the vicinity of New Bloomfield, Perry county, are being opened and the deposits are said to be not only large but the quality excellent.

John Keber was killed on the Fort Wayne road at Allegheny City on Wednesday. He was a former resident of Johnstown and his mother was washed away by the flood. He has been attending a wedding in the capacity of groomsman, and had just taken one of the bridesmaids to her home when, on his way to his boarding house he met his death.

Recent deaths in Mifflin county are: James N. Blymyer, of Lewistown, aged 42 years; John Miller, of Wayne township, aged 83, and Mrs. James Ramsey, of Armaugh township, aged 20.

Huntingdon Local News: Two young men named Ed Zimmerman and William Rutherford were arrested by Constable John Householder, of Alexandria, yesterday, and lodged in jail charged with larceny of goods from Gregory store in Barree.

Failures With Clover.

The chief cause of failure with clover is foul seed and imperfect preparation of the land. There are but few clover-fields from weeds, the seeds of the weeds being harvested with the clover-seed and sold to all points, only to spread the evil. The quantity of seed used is also too limited sometimes. It should be a rule always to use too much seed rather than to incur the risk of too little. It would be well if corn should follow wheat, so as to work and cultivate the land, in order to clean it of weeds and sow the cloverseed in the fall, as by so doing the land could be thoroughly prepared and made fine, the seed being lightly brushed in, thus enabling the farmer to have his field of clover uniform. Failures also occur from lack of a supply of lime and potash after the clover is well under growth. All clover land should be well limed after harrowing, and if a supply of wood ashes cannot be obtained the crude potash salts should be applied as well as the time.

The Mercantile Appraisement.

The mercantile appraisement for Centre county is now out and shows a fair increase in that line of business during the past year. There are now in the neighborhood of three hundred places, that can be taxed by the mercantile appraiser, within Centre county. This is a good standing and compares favorably with any county in the State.

WAS IT STOLEN?

A SPECIAL TO THIS PAPER SAYS ANDREWS WAS BURIED

In the Corner Of a Field.

Serious Charges Made—An Investigation Now in Order.

A special telephone dispatch from Rev. Zeigler says: "It is reported that Andrews is to be buried at Hickory Kingdom; it is not correct. He was buried on the lower corner of Stanley Watson's farm. It was considered a set-up job. It was surmised his corpse would not remain there twenty-four hours and it is doubtful if it is there now. To call the Messiah church "Hickory Kingdom" is a burlesque for which none but the ignoramus or the idiot is excusable.

ALFRED ANDREWS BURIED TO-DAY

His Last Resting Place in the Ridges near Milesburg.—Reminiscences.

The funeral of Alfred James Andrews, the fourth and last murderer hanged in Centre county, took place at 5 o'clock Thursday from the undertaking establishment of Mr. Solomon Confer, in Milesburg. The interment of the body was made in the Milesburg cemetery out in the ridges. This was out of no disrespect to the body, but it was simply because that is where the cemetery is now located. This is the final ending of the sad play on life's stage which began with such a terrible tragedy on the morning of the 27th of November last

REMIMSCENCES.

Sheriff's Leahy, of Clinton county, and Clearfield county's sheriff were present at the execution on Wednesday, and both the gentlemen said they never saw a job of that kind performed better than the hanging of Andrews.

There is no denying the fact, opposite political party organs assaults to the contrary, notwithstanding, that Sheriff Cooke performed his duty like a man and we don't believe there is another Sheriff in the State of Pennsylvania who could have done it so well. At all times cool and perfectly self-possessed, and yet showing due solemnity and all the respect for the condemned that the occasion required or warranted, he performed his duty without a tremor—obeying the mandate of the law and vindicating outraged society in its clamor for justice. Nothing too complimentary can be said in behalf of Sheriff Cooke, while the attack of opposition political organs, will fall flat before the stone-wall-like truth of the above which was witnessed and can be testified too by hundreds of Democrats as well as Republicans.

NOTES.

The prisoner was dressed in black, with a long Prince Albert coat. He wore a button-hole boquet of small red flowers and in general appearance looked far too well to travel the road to the scaffold.

During the pinioning of the prisoner's arms and limbs a choir of male voices, lead by Prof. Lowell Meyer, sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul," the prisoner joining them, though very faintly.

Contrary to the announcement in Wednesday's NEWS, the prisoner's neck was broken. This was not supposed to have been the case until it was discovered at the post mortem examination, as the man was seen to breathe several times after the fall, which is a most extraordinary thing when the neck is broken. But the doctors accounted for it from the fact that the break was so low down it did not fracture a certain cord, which, had it done so, would have made breathing entirely impossible. Andrews was dead in fifteen minutes after the drop fell but was not cut down until he had hanged twenty six minutes

There must have been fully six hundred persons present to witness the execution. Among the crowd were five or six physicians and a half dozen newspaper representatives.

A Brave Rescue.

On Tuesday about noon Miss Annie, daughter of Mr. S. S. Lyon, of Curtin street, in company with little Miss Annie Orvis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Orvis, was promenading back and forth on the pavement in front of Mr. Lyon's residence. Miss Lyon being called into the house took the child along as far as the porch and there left her. The little Miss went out on the pavement alone and, scarcely had she passed through the gate when a cow, that had been grazing, apparently unobserved, near by, with lowered head made a mad rush for the child. Master Earle Tuten, who was near by at the time, rushed between the angry beast and the child. The latter started for the gate but was so unfortunate as to fall down and then her frightened and agonized cries brought Miss Lyon to the door.

Instantly realizing the danger of the child she, with a wild cry, bounded forward only to be so unfortunate as to stumble herself, but almost instantly regaining her feet she succeeded in reaching the child and dragging her within the gate. In the meantime Master Earle and the cow had been engaged in a hand-to-horn struggle—it being necessary several times to take a firm hold of the animal's horns in order to prevent her from getting to the child; but Earle performed his duty nobly and, we are glad to say, all parties got off with but a bad fright.

CHAINED LIGHTNING.

Some Marvelous Things About Captured Electricity—But It Costs Money to Play With It.

If Benjamin Franklin, George Washington or most any of those old timers were to rise from their beds 'neath the sod and by a singular coincidence one of them happen to get in Boston with his ear at the end of a long distance telephone wire and another one be in Scranton or Wilkesbarre similarly situated and they were to suddenly hear each other talk they would be willing to swear that some man was trying to play a practical joke on them or else that all the world was bewitched or gone crazy.

What a wonderful evolution there has been in that line since electricity has first been utilized to serve man. And then to know that its use or full power has not yet been anyways near fully developed, is the more surprising. Mr. R. M. Bailey, of Williamsport, the general manager of the Central Pennsylvania Telephone and Supply Company, was in Bellefonte on Thursday evening and a DAILY NEWS reporter was present and heard him discuss the long distance telephone.

Mr. Bailey said that the Long Distance Company had now connections from Scranton and Wilkesbarre, this State, to Portland, Maine, including the connection of all intermediate important places. The Long Distance Company is building a line by way of Elmira to Buffalo, N Y. The Central Penna. are now working on a line from Scranton to Williamspoot with the intention of continuing on by way of Lock Haven and Bellefonte to Philipsburg and Clearfield, and maybe on west as far as Johnstown or Pittsburg. It is more than likely that the line will be completed as far as Lock Haven this summer and perhaps as far as Bellefonte.

Mr. Bailey says that he was talking a few days ago, from Scranton to Providence, Rhode Island, and the tones were just as distinct as they would be in talking between any two business places in Bellefonte. The cause of such remarkable distinctness is in the construction of the wire which, if we remember rightly, is a double copper insulated carrying a double current, thereby dispensing with the ground wire which, in turn, shuts out all that buzzing noise which is heard on the ordinary wire. It also confines the entire tone of the voice to the wire—it being completely insulated from all others from one end of a line to the other.

The long-distance telephone is a great wonder and will undoubtedly prove a great convenience but it will be a luxury that only the fortune-favored few can enjoy. For instance, take the following figures of rates: A message, or five minutes talk from Bellefonte to Philadelphia over a long-distance line would cost just $3, while to Boston the cost would be about $10. From Scranton to New York City—where the lines are now in use—large coal operators have rented lines. For half time on a long distance between the two places, the rent per year is $4,000. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has the exclusive use of a line between Philadelphia and New York for which they pay $3,600 per year. The Cambria Iron Company, at Johnstown, has offered the Telephone company $10,000 for the exclusive use of a long distance wire from Johnstown to New York.

It was at first feared by the telegraph companies that the long distance telephone would be a competitor to them but the high rates that the telephone company will be compelled to charge puts it out of line even as a possible competition. And even at such rates the possible practical earnings are below the possible practical earnings of the telegraph.

For example, take the rate between Bellefonte and Philadelphia—$3 for a five minute talk. It would require all of another five minutes to disconnect and call up another patron. That would only average one message every ten minutes or six an hour which would be equal to $18 an hour as the highest practical earnings possible. On the telegraph the rate per message of ten words is 25 cents. A telegraph message will not average over about fifteen words. A good operator will send 35 to 40 words per minute. Allow a little time for receiving messages from patrons it still would be possible to average a message and a half a minute which would be equal to ninety an hour; at 25 cents per message, the highest practical earnings of a telegraph wire could then be reasonably computed at $22.50 or $4.50 more than would be possible on the telephone. The above is an interesting study and our readers, who contemplate the approach of the long distance phone with pleasure, would do well to look up the figures and compute the cost and profit.

ARBOR DAY TREE PLANTING.

The Bellefonte Schools Appropriately Observed the Day with Suitable and Edifying Exercises.

THE PRIMARY SCHOOLS.

On Friday morning the schools in the Brick building were the first to hold Arbor Day exercises. They were opened by Miss May DeSylva playing a march to the time of which the schools marched into the High School room. The entire assemblage then sang "Bright Arbor Day," which was followed by the singing of "The Awakening Year." Harry Shirk then delivered an inspiring speech in defence of the trees. Miss Edith Holtz gave a recitation entitled "The Beauty of the Tourists," after which all joined in singing "The Ancient Sycamore."

Miss Daisy Smith was the next one to appear and the recitation she delivered was received with much applause. A class of Miss Powers' school came next with a class recitation which proved very entertaining and instructive. Lizzie Faxton then recited the "Planting of the Apple Tree," after which the schools sang "Swinging 'neath the Old Apple Tree."

Miss Gertie Irvin recited an appropriate selection entitled, "The Rose and the Ivy." Master Guy Achenbach followed with a selection delivered in a very pleasing manner. Lena Baum recited "The Coming of the Flowers," and the schools again joined in singing, in a spirited manner, "Spring has Come."

The exercises were continued by Miss Daisy Keichline reciting "The Oak" in a pleasing and captivating manner, and was followed by Miss Maggie Teats in a selection entitled, "The Work of the Trees." Master Joe Runkle told about "The Pine" in such a way as to call forth a great deal of applause, and as everybody was then feeling good they all joined in singing "The Old Mountain Pine."

Joseph Twitmire took up the thread of exercises at this juncture and told something about "The Seeds and Flowers," after which Miss Gertie Crest recited "The Ivy Green" in a manner which merited much praise. "Our Friends, the Flowers," was an appropriate song next rendered, after which Miss Loua Strohm recited "The Beauty of the Trees" in an extremely pleasant manner. A class from Miss Levy's room then "Told us what great men think of flowers," after which the schools sang an appropriate piece.

Prof. Lieb then requested Mr. Fortney to tell the scholars why we observe Arbor Day and plant trees, which he did in a very instructive manner. "Spring Time," was then sung by the entire school, after which Prof. Lieb described the trees which would be planted, and the exercises in the room closed with the school singing another appropriate selection.

Miss May DeSylva played a march to the time of which the scholars marched from the High School room to their respective rooms to put on their wraps after which all repaired to the Campus where Miss Shortlidge's school planted a varigated English elm, Master Johnny Keichline delivering an oration and named the tree in honor of Dr. E. E. Higbee.

Miss Bella Rankin's school planted a Magnolia, naming it in honor of Mr. E. C. Humes, Miss Powers' school planted a varigated English maple in honor of Gen. D. H. Hastings, Miss Levy's school planted two shrubs in honor of President and Mrs. Harrison.

Miss Lizzie Bottorf's school planted two vines in honor of Profs. D. M. Lieb and D. M. Wolf. A weeping elm was planted, in memory of Katie H. Fortney, by her brother Paul, who delivered a very touching speech. Miss Grace Armor, one of Katie's friends, read an appropriate selection. The schools then sang "Auld Lang Syne," and the exercises being ended, all were dismissed.

THE HIGH SCHOOL.

As early as 2 o'clock the High school room began to fill rapidly with those eager to hear the Arbor Day exercises prepared and to be delivered by the class of '90, but it was almost 3 o'clock before the presiding officer, Mr. Boyd Musser, called the audience to order and announced that the exercises would open with an invocation by Rev. C. H. Brown. Music was the next thing on the programme and this was rendered by that very good Bellefonte organization known as the Aeolian orchestra. Charles A. Rowan, in an essay, told the "Value of Trees" after which Miss Myra Holliday recited "Woodman, Spare that Tree," in a very creditable and oratorical way. Music, by the orchestra. Essay, "The Class Tree," by Miss Florence Longacre, after which W. I. Swoope. Esq., recited in the perfect way he alone is capable of "The Frenchman's Toast—The Ladies." The recitation was laughable and Mr. S. was loudly applauded but would not again respond.

Essay—"Trees of America," by Harry G. DeSylva, after which the orchestra again favored with music. Miss Bridgie Curry then read a well written essay on "Some Thoughts Upon Trees. At this juncture Rev. Ed. Everett Hoshour was down on the programme for an appropriate address but as he was not present, Prof. Bonbright was called on for a recitation and responded by reciting a selection from Shakespeare. Rev. W. L. Hayden then made a few very appropriate remarks after which the exercises in the school room closed with music by the orchestra.

All then adjourned to the Campus where the Class tree, known as the Coffee Tree, was planted, Boyd A. Musser delivered the oration and Miss Millie Smith dedicated the tree in honor of Prof. D. O. Etters. Rev. Brown then pronounced the benedictien and the assemblage dispersed.

The entire programme of exercises gone through showed considerable study in the preparation thereof, and reflected great credit on the class of '90. May they, in the far distant years of the future, come back from wherever they may be, and, sitting in the shade of the Class tree planted Friday, watch the planting of another class on a similar day.

IN THE STONE BUILDING.

The exercises in the stone building were very good and reflected great credit on both principal, teachers and pupils. Following is the programme in full.

Song—Arbor Day, by the schools.
Recitation—My Garden, May Garner.
Song—Up the Mountain climbing.
Recitation—The Woodland Hall, by class of girls.
Recitation—The Boy's Promise, Emma Sheffler.
Song—Engleside.
Select reading—Hannah Lehman.
Recitation—Woodman Spare that Tree Lula Hoy.
Song—Away! Away!
Recitation—Stella Gault.
Song—Awakening year.
Recitation—Arbor Day, Class of twelve.
Recitation—Annie Curtin.
Song—Touch us, Gentle Spring.
Recitation—Sad Fate of a Moustache, William Austin.
Song—Come with Thy Lute.
Recitation—How to Cure a Cough, Willie Mills.
Dialogue—How to Choose a Tree, class of ten.
Crow song—School. This closed the exercises in the house and then they all went outside to plant the trees, which were as follows:

Miss Annie McCaffrey's school, a European Sycamore, named in honor of Prof. D. M. Lieb.

Miss Kate Hewes' school, Norway Maple—planted in front of Lutheran church—named Martin Luther.

J. F. Harrison's school, Davaei Elm—planted in front of church—named Malanthen.

Miss Jennie Strickland's school, English Mt. Ash, named David Fortney.

Miss Laura Wright's school, two Japan Ivies, named Mr. and Mrs. Jno. P. Harris.

Miss Rose Fox's school, Sugar Maple, named W. B. Rankin.

Miss Carrie Weaver's school, Sugar Maple, named Prof. D. M. Wolf.

An appropriate speech was made by a pupil from each school on the planting of each tree.

The Flood at Tyrone.

At Tyrone the Juniata and Bald Eagle are running over their banks, and at the intersection of Juniata and Logan streets the water stands to a considerable depth. The bar room of the Arlington House is filled to the ceiling for a second time within a year, and the Boyer House basement is also drowned out. No great amount of damage has as yet been done, and it is not thought there will be unless Dry run should get beyond its bounds.

The ore bank is again in operation and gives employment to a great many men.

Mr. Herman Baird has taken his departure for a higher climate.

Mr. E. M. Shuey has bought a fine team of colts which he will use to drive in his creamery wagon.

Don't forget there will be preaching at the U. B. church next Sunday evening.

DUTCHY.

Bellefonte Republican,

CHAS. L. GATES, - - LESSEE
Editor and Business Manager.

Local Department.

—This is another nice day.

—The Renovo postmaster has got to be a Chestnut.

—The hose house and council chamber are being repaired and beautified.

—The dust on the streets of Bellefonte is two inches deep—more or less.

—The county Fathers have not and will not be in Bellefonte this week.

—Miss Mollie Snyder's millinery opening will not occur until the 24th of April.

—Mr. S. D. Ray is going to erect a new fence around his property on Ridge street.

—The lilac buds are bursting and a few more days like Sunday will bring out the blossoms.

—A large railroad employee strike is now imminent. It would affect all roads in western Pennsylvania.

—We understand that the remains of Mrs. F. L. Olds were taken to Columbus, Ohio, for interment.

—An old maid up at Tyrone, was paralyzed a few days ago, it is said, by a proposal of marriage. Oh!

—Prof. Gramley has been in Philipsburg looking up his interest in the Centre county School Superintendentship.

—All soldiers or heirs of soldiers are requested to look up the ad. in another column headed "Important to Soldiers."

—An exchange says aspiring candidates are "lying" their wire. We guess their doing considerable other lying, too.

—We forgot to mention on Saturday that the bride and groom Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Spangler, had returned from their wedding tour.

—The business men in Philadelphia have called a meeting to be held in the interest of General Hastings' gubernatorial candidacy.

—Many persons in Bellefonte were making garden on Monday but last night and this morning will likely have cooled their ardor.

—A Philadelphia clergyman, it is said, has joined 1300 couples in his life. He, undoubtedly, has made a fortune in the marriage business.

—Mr D. P. Shope, of Milesburg, announces himself in the current issue of this paper as a candidate for the nomination for county commissioner.

—What is the matter with the Lock Haven Democrat? We have not received a copy of that paper this week. Brother Furey, why is this thusly?

—The Tyrone Times entered upon its eleventh volume last week and now under the management of Editor Nissley, is a better paper than ever since it was started.

—There are hundreds of trout fishers out to-day and to-morrow there will be hundreds of l——well, we will tell you all about it to-morrow, if we find out ourselves.

—A meeting of the stockholders of the Cambria Coal and Iron Company was held at the office of their President Thomas A. Shoemaker, on Monday afternoon. The business of the meeting was strictly private.

—Mrs. David Bohn, of near Boalsburg, died on Saturday of blood poisoning. She was aged about 40 years; she leaves a husband and five small children to mourn their loss. The funeral occurred on Monday.

—It is said that thirty-five circuses and menageries will cater to the pleasures of the American public this summer. Wonder how many of the 35 in question the Bellefonte small boy will have a chance to gaze at?

—Christian Albright, one of Tyrone's leading citizens, died at his home in that place, on Friday night at 11.55 o'clock. Cause of his death was pneumonia complicated with heart trouble. He was buried on Sunday.

—Blair county will hold its primaries on Saturday, and next week the Republicans will elect delegates from that county to the State Convention. There will likely be some work done by politicians in that county this week, —The Bellefonte DAILY NEWS is the best exchange that reaches our table. Editor Charles L. Gates may well be proud of his success in newspaperdom. The NEWS deserves a large and liberal patronage. We highly appreciate its daily visit.—Sugar Valley Journal.

—Dr. Alvin G. Harter, a student at the Jefferson Medical College, of Philadelphia, also an office student of Dr. G. S. Frank, of Millheim, returned to his home at Green Briar last week, having however, first stopped off on his way at Selinsgrove to see a very particular friend.

—We are glad to know that our friend, Mr. George O. Boal, has secured a lucrative position in the census department at Washington, D. C., and that he will soon depart for that city. Treasurer Cyrus Goss rented the Boal homestead and will move there as soon as vacated by Mr. Boal.

UNION VETERAN LEGION.

Camp No. 59 to be Mustered in To-morrow Night in Gregg Post Room.

From Tuesdayys DAILY NEWS.

It has for some time been known that Comrade G. B. Brandon had started to organize a Union Veteran Legion in Centre county and we are glad to say, his efforts have been crowned with success and to-morrow (Wednesday) evening, at 7.30 o'clock, in the Gregg Post Rooms, the Legion will be mustered in with 35 charter members, D. E. Beighel of Camp No. 17 Altoona, will be the mustering officer. The application for a charter, which was filed a couple of weeks ago, contained the names of 16 veterans whose average consecutive term of service was 3 years and 29 days.

The Camp at this place will have on its list soldiers from all over Centre county. It is more than probable that this will be the only charter granted in the county, as that has been the request of those getting up the Legion, and the Adjutant General assurred them he would consider the matter favorably. The reason for this is to insure the success and growth of No. 59. Should there be a Legion at every hamlet or village in the county, it stands to reason that within a few years they would all go out of existence because of lack of material to draw from, while if there is but one in the county it will have the entire territory to draw from and the promise of a good-working and large camp.

That all soldiers may know just what is required in order that one may become a member of the Union Veteran Legion we give the following: He must be a soldier who has seen two consecutive years of faithful service; must have enlisted prior to the 1st day of July 1863; must have an honorable discharge from the United States army, and a soldier against whom there never was a question in point of honor or the faithful discharge of duty raised. We wish the new order unbounded success and a rapid growth.

—William T. Young, of this place, who is conductor on local freight of the B. E. V. R. R., met with a very painful accident while in the discharge of his duties last Saturday. He was standing with his back to the main track taking the numbers of cars on the siding of the nail works at Bellefonte, when his own train was passing on the main track. It happened that a door of a refrigerator car on this train had swung open and this door struck Mr. Young, who was busy and did not notice his danger. It knocked him down, throwing him several feet away, and he fell with his face directly on a rail. The force of the fall being spent on his face, it was of course very severely cut and bruised, one eye and the nose being badly lacerated. It was at first thought that the skull had been fractured, but it is now known that it was not, and under skillful care his recovery is certain. The experience was a painful one and Mr. Young had a narrow escape.—Tyrone Herald.

Howard Happenings.

Mr. John DeHaas, who took a trip to Washington City in company with Jno. A. Daley, Esq., has returned again to his home in this place.

Miss Lulu Hensyl, daughter of Dr. L. R. Hensyl, departed on Monday for Lewisburg where she will attend school.

Mr. Edward Pletcher departed for Poughkeepsie on Monday to take a course in short hand at the college located there.

Mr George Robb intends opening a select school in Howard on the 21st.

Mr. Jacob DeHaas, our genial hotel keeper, has a new boarder. It is a girl.

The Band boys frequently serenade on our streets.

John Weber and wife are very much pleased with the new arrival. They think it the nicest girl in town.

—Gideon Ganoe, living at Warriorsmark, an aged soldier and a member of U. V. Legion of Tyrone, was thrown from a wagon near Dry Hollow ore mines Saturday morning and severely injured. Three ribs were broken and he was also badly cut abont the head and shoulders. He was unconscious when picked up and it required stimulants to revive him. Mr. Ganoe was assisting the delivery clerk of Mr. J. Mattern of Warriorsmark to deliver goods and on the return trip the horse took fright at some object and ran off. The driver being unable to control it the occupants were thrown out. The driver sustained but slight injuries.

A Cornish Story.

Mr. John Fortney, of Mackeyville, was in the city yesterday, says the Lock Haven Express, and related the following. On Easter Day one of his children was about to eat a hard boiled egg, and had broken the shell for that purpose. Imbedded in the white part of the egg was found a whole grain of corn. The kernel had sprouted, and an embryo stock of corn an inch long protruded from the grain. How the grain of corn got into the egg is puzzling Mr. Fortney's brain at present. Who can explain it?

—Mr. E. Tyson of Philipsburg, announces himself in the current issue of this paper, as a candidate for the nomination for county treasurer. We are glad to be able to reccommend Mr. Tyson to the favorable consideration of all good Republicans as a man whom, we believe, would make a good and efficient office holder. We will have more to say of him in the future.

TWO HUNGARIANS SERIOUSLY INJURED.

One Caught in the Hoisting House and the Other Falls Twenty Feet.

On Sunday evening a Hungarian who was working the dump in the hoisting house at the Centre Iron Company's Furnace, pulled the gong wire, as usual, for to signal the hoisting of a car. The wire broke but not until the gong had sounded. The Hungarian did not think that far but climbed up the frame to tie the wire when the one side of the double elevator came down, in response to his signal, and, the Hungarian, being crushed into about 5 inches space, the flesh was stripped entirely from his back and the calf of one leg was torn entirely away. The probabilities are he cannot live.

On Monday another Hungarian, at the same work's was working at the railroad dump, when a train backed up unobserved by him. He was knocked from his footing and fell a distance of twenty feet, alighting on his head on an ore pile. His skull was cracked and there is not the slightest chance of his recovery, it is said.

It is strange, but it has been a long time since there has been an accident of any kind at these works and now these two both happened within twenty-four hours. Is it fate or destiny?

Three Cases From Centre County.

In the Supreme Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, on Monday, April 21st, 1890, will be argued the following cases from Centre county:

Midland Mining Company, appellants, vs. Lehigh Valley Coal Company, et al. Attorneys—Orvis, Bower & Orvis for plaintiffs, John G. Love, for defendants. The case is an ejectment for lot of coal lands in Burnside township.

City of Philadelphia vs. Wm. Grauer & Company, appellants. Attorneys—John G. Love for plaintiff, Beaver, Gephart & Dale for defendant.

Mrs. Eliza Curtin, et al vs. the Nittany Valley Railroad Company. Attorneys—Orvis, Bower & Orvis for plaintiffs, Beaver, Gephart & Dale for defendants.

The above three are the only cases that will be taken to the Supreme Court this term, all other cases coming too late to make the necessary preparation.

A Famous Woman.

The only woman who was ever nominated for the Presidency of the United States; the only woman ever admitted to the U. S. Court of Claims; the first person to move the admission of the first colored man to the bar of the U. S. Sugreme Court; the first person who knows a thing without seeing or experiencing, the great lady lecturer, Belva Lockwood, will lecture in the court house on Tuesday night, April 29th, on that all engrossing subject, "Is Marriage a Failure?" but Belva has turned the question to suit herself and the subject to her lecture will therefore be, "Is Marriage a Failure? No, Sir!" All Bellefonters—especially old maids and old batchelors—should go and hear Belva.

Will Make a Double House.

Mr. William Jenkins has dug out the oundation in the rear of the upper side of his handsome residence on High street, for an addition, to compose a dining room and kitchen, to his house. The object of this is, we believe, to make a double house out of what they now occupy themselves and, with the addition of the two rooms above mentioned, two very comfortable, convenient and good sized houses can be made. It will make a very pretty house for some family as the location is nice, the yard is all that could be desired, there will be every convenience possible to have and more than all, they will have for neighbors some of the nicest people in Bellefonte.

The Division Encampment.

The conference between Governor Beaver, Adjutant General Hastings and Mr. Robert H. Coleman, at Lebanon, in regard to the arrangements of the division encampment at Mt. Gretna this summer, was satisfactory in every particular. Mr. Coleman has already enlarged the grounds, and further proposes to enlarge the parade ground. A line of railway has been run from the main line of the railroad to the rifle range, where there is considerable room, and it is very likely that a brigade will be encamped in that vicinity. The United States troops will also encamp at the same time as the Guard.

Married in Philadelphia.

Mr. Walter Graham, late chemist for Collins Bros., was married to-day to Miss Annie Baker, who is known in Bellefonte, having visited the family of Mr. Edward Kitson, the electrician at Collins' works. The wedding was solemnized in the Quaker City. The beginning of this happy culmination can be accredited to Bellefonte as it was here the parties first met, less than a year ago.

Repairs on a Railroad.

The Bald Eagle Valley Railroad track from Curtin Station to Curtin bridge is being raised to a higher grade. A new iron bridge is to be built over the Bald Eagle Creek, between Mount Eagle Station and Milesburg.

SOME OF THE BIGGEST.

Fish Stories Told and Fish Caught by Active Anglers.

Tuesday was the first day of the trout fishing season and, from as early as two o'clock in the morning till dark in the evening fishermen could be seen on the banks of Spring Creek—in whatever direction one might look.

It seemed as if everybody with all their friends, their rich and their poor relations, from the ragged street urchin to the learned lawyer at the bar—including the register, deputy recorder and the youthful editor of the Centre Democrat—all were there; and the crowd measured two thick on all the banks of Spring Creek from Milesburg to Tussey Mountain.

The catch, all told, numbered some less than ten thousand and, as Charlie Heisler, the widewake toombstone man, said, "it was not a good day for fishing either."

Just how many of the vast amount caught were shipped away it would be hard to tell but we think it must have been about ninety nine one hundredths of the entire lot as the only fish we saw were those in possession of the distinguished register of Centre county, and he had only five. As a sample of fisherman luck we give the following names of a few of those who were fishing and the number they reported having caught:

W. F. Reeder 20, W. C. Heinle 20, W. F. Reber 14, Will Garman 10, George and Fred Jackson 11, M Cunningham 13, Linn Harris 27, Charlie Heisler 23, Harry Ryan 18, Harry Switzer 24, two colored boys 56, a young Walker 20, Garis 32, Frank Naginey 22—all from 8 to 10 inches long, Clayton Brown 12, Lanny De Witt 34, John Harris, Jr., as told by William Jones, 20, register Rupp and deputy recorder Harter 20—one of which weighed 1½ pounds; J. G. Love, Esq., 3; and last but not least Charles Kurtz, who reported a catch of 100, but others declare he had only 35. We do not care for the fish but, Oh gosh! it goes to our heart like a knife to have a newspaper man caught up in such a whopper; they generally manage to set things up in better style than that. Charlie, you must do better the next time.

Thought Her Child Was Stolen.

On Monday a half-dozen children were playing before a house on Bishop street. Within the house the inmates of the family, all save a little girl, were eating their midday meal. All at once a boy—of course, one of the always well informed boys—rushed into the room and cried out that "a man had taken little Annie in a buggy and driven off." Instantly all was confusion. The table was deserted and the members of the family, including an Altoona policeman, fairly flew out of the house; the policeman so fast he did not take time to look where he was going and the result was a sprained ankle from which he is hobbling yet.

Inquiries were made as to where the man had gone, etc. The news flew up and down the street that a child had been kidnapped. A young man and a horse were engaged and started in hot pursuit after the child thief. The mother was sobbing and wringing her hands and the child—came walking around from the back part of the house entirely unconscious of anything. Of course, explanations were next in order but the boy that started the kidnapping story was among the missing.

Grand Army Meeting This Year.

The Grand Army of the Republic will meet in Boston this year, and the citizens are stirring themselves to make the meeting all the veterans could desire and in all respects all it should be. Nothing is to be done by halves. The State will contribute $50,000, the city $25,000 and the citizens will put up $100,000 more to cover deficiencies. A Boston paper says; "Massachusetts will be disappointed if the coming encampment fails to attain unexampled dimensions." These particulars are given to be remembered by Bellefonte when the boys become its guests.

Clearfield Creek Drive.

The Clearfield "Public Spirit" says. Anthony Flynn got out of the creek this week with his drive of 10,000,000 feet of logs. They belong to Weaver & Betts, John M. Troxell, John Leonard and McGaughey, Dimeling & Co., and others: Clark Duncan was just behind him with 4,000,000 feet belonging to Duck & Kramer. This is the smallest spring drive that ever came out of Clearfield creek and it will not be long before driving logs out of that stream will be a thing of the past.

Letter List.

List of unclaimed letters remaining in the post office at Bellefonte, Centre county, Pa., April 14, 1890.

Jeremiah Bandt, Miko Boreaz, Joel Clen, William Jackson, Sallie Kern, John Kane, Daniel Magee, Bell Price, Susan Reyer, Gair Sechler, A J Walzer, George Weir.

Persons inquiring for letters named in the above list will please say advertised.

J. A. FIEDLER, P. M.

Maj. Montooth in Bellefonte.

Major Montooth, of Pittsburg, and an aspirant for gubernatorial honors, was in Bellefonte on Wednesday just long enough for the shifting of the engine on the 9.32 a. m. train. He was on his way from Pittsburg to some of the northern central counties, we suppose. He was recognized by a very few, however, while here.

Personal Pencilings.

Hon. James Milliken is now in New York.

Rev. Father Fisher, of Overbrook, Pa., spent Thursday in Bellefonte.

Mrs. E. L. Powers, is at home again after a few days spent in Jersey Shore.

J. C. Love and J. C. Harper, Esqs, were in Philipsburg Saturday on business.

Misses Mamie Fox and Mamie Ceader have returned from visiting friends at Tyrone.

Mr. and Mrs. Schell, of Tyrone, spent Tuesday with their many friends in Bellefonte.

J. W. Gephart, one of Bellefonte's leading attorneys, was in Tyrone on Wednesday.

Miss Carrie Wolf and her brother Charley, of Tyrone, left for home Friday morning.

Mr. John Anderson, Jr., jumped aboard the a. m. train on Monday and went to Pittsburg.

Mr. A. S. Grow, one of Lock Haven's brightest and best insurance men, was in Bellefonte on Monday.

Mrs. W. C. Heinle and her interesting son Malcolm, of this place, departed for New York City last evening.

Mr. Bigler Meek, one of Altoona's efficient policemen, spent Sunday with friends in this place. Mr. Meek is an old Centre county boy and doubtless is well known in Bellefonte.

Miss Mary Trafford, of Williamsport, Pa., is now a visitor in Bellefonte, the guest of her brother, Mr. John Trafford, on Howard street. Miss Mary is a very agreeable young lady, and her stay will be a pleasure to her many friends.

Col. D. S. Dunham took his departure Monday morning on the early train for Marcus Hook, on the Delaware river below Chester, where he will be the guest of the Polo Fishing Club. Mr. Dunham will return in time to look after his chances for county commissioner.

A Girl Almost Roasted.

Johnstown Tribune, 15th

Between 8 and 9 o'clock this morning Annie Baines, a cobble-picker, met with a horrible and probably fatal accident. She was at work on the dump in Frog Hollow, between the Fourteenth ward and Rosedale. Just after a dump of hot cinder Annie and the other pickers, as is customary on such occasions, made a rush for the material, to secure the first choice of cobbles. In stepping over a sizzling hot cinder Annie's clothing caught fire, and in an instant she was enveloped in flames. Her companions saw her condition, but were so panic-stricken that they were slow in rendering her assistance, and, before any of them reached her, she had fallen prostrate on the red-hot cinders. When she was finally dragged aside the remnants of her clothing which had not been consumed were torn from her body and she was carried to the home of her stepfather, a man named Rager, on Connelly avenue, Fourteenth ward. There she was attended by Dr. W. B. Lowman who had promptly responded to a summons. He found her legs, hips and thighs roasted and charred in a sickening manner and numerous burns on her body. She suffered intensely until the doctor dressed the roasted surface, and administered proper medicines after which she rested in apparent ease. Her condition is, however, so critical that the doctor does not think she will recover. Miss Baines is about 20 years of age and has been on the dump for a long time.

—Monday the family of Rev. J. A. Woodcock moved from their comfortable home on East Linn street to Williamsport where they will make their future home. Mr. and Mrs. Woodcock and family have made many warm friends since their abode in Bellefonte and there is not one among the many who does not regret their departure. We hope they will conclude, in the near future, to return to Bellefonte. Mr. and Mrs. James McKee moved into the Woodcock residence Tuesday and will occupy it in the future.

CAPT. ARMES LECTURED.

He Tries to Use Gov. Curtin, But Is Given a Talking To.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 14.—Ex-Gov. Curtin sat down severely on Capt. Armes, who assaulted Gov. Beaver. Capt. Armes was shrewd enough to see that if he could capture some sort of social recognition from Gov. Curtin, he might in some degree rehabilitate himself in the outward esteem of respectable Pennsylvanians. Accordingly he hied himself to the Arlington and found Gov. Curtin, who had known him in former days, in the hotel lobby. Armes offered his hand to Curtin, who condescended to take it. Then Armes said:

"Governor, I'd like to take you out riding. I'll come here for you to-morrow with a carriage at any hour you name."

The big, bony, gaunt figure of Curtin unbent itself into the straightest line of his fullest height. The assailant of Gov. Beaver is not short, but he looked like a pigmy by the side of the War Governor. Said Curtin:

"I believe you are the man who tried to inflict an indignity upon the State of Pennsylvania, in the person of its honored Governor. I have shaken your hand in memory of former times. I say to you now that that must be the limit of our acquaintance. I cannot and would not appear in your company in public. I decline your invitation to ride."

Armes began to bluster. The ex-Gov. looked down upon him in scorn. Then Armes wanted to explain. "There is no explanation possible," said Gov. Curtin. "You tried to insult Pennsylvania in the person of its Governor. I'm not crippled, but I'm getting old. I would advise you to make any complaint you have about your treatment at the inaugural parade to Gen. Hastings, who was the Marshal. I refer you to him, with the caution that when he gets through with you neither the Secretary of War nor your own mother will be able to recognize you."

Armes retired in bad order.—Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.

A Burglar Caught.

Some days ago a man giving the name of Charles Howard was arrested in Philadelphia for committing a theft. On his person were found a number of watches and rings. An account of the arrest and the finding of the articles was published in the Philadelphia papers, and J. A. C. Stewart, whose jewelry store was burglarized in Tyrone a short time ago, went down to Philadelphia and identified the goods as a portion of those stolen from his store. A warrant was issued by 'Squire W. F. Taylor for the man, and Sunday Constable Snyder, of Tyrone, left for Philadelphia and Tuesday he was taken to Hollidaysburg for trial.

For the Summer Camp.

A dispatch from Harrisburg on Tuesday says: Adjt. Gen. Hastings, accompanied by Brigadier-Generals, Snowden, Gobin and Wylie, to-day visited Mt. Gretna to locate the brigade camps during the summer encampment. After going over the ground very carefully they decided to locate the First Brigade back of Division Headquarters, on the hill overlooking the lake; the Second Brigade near the station at the park, and the Third Brigade at the rifle range at least half a mile from the other brigades: The United States regular troops will camp with the Second Brigade and will consist of four companies of infantry, three batteries and two cavalry troops.

Lecture at Lamar.

Rev. Owen Hicks, drummer boy of Company C, Seventh Ohio Vol. Infantry will lecture in the M. E. church at Lamar, Nittany Valley, on Friday evening, May 2, for the benefit of the church. Rev. Hicks will lecture about what occurred between the "swearing in" and the "muster out." The price of admission will be 20 cents; children 10 cents.

—Samuel Spangler is still prospecting for coal on his farm at Tylersville, Sugar Valley. Several thin veins have been discovered and the prospectors are in high hopes of finding a larger body. The work of prospecting will be continued for some time.

Millinery Opening.

Miss Amanda Mothersbaugh, of Lemont, will open up a full line of dress goods, trimmings, and all kinds of fine millinery, on Saturday, April 19. All are invited to call. Patronage solicited.

A Large Black Bass.

A black bass is said to have been caught in Bald Eagle Creek, near Mill Hall, on Saturday, which was 21 inches long and weighed four and half pounds.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

UNDER this head we will announce the names of all persons, who are candidates for any office, desiring us so to do. The price of such announcement will be $5 for each and every person aspiring to any office, save that of Congress, for which the rate will be $8; cash invariably in advance.

FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER.

We are authorized to announce that John Decker will be a candidate for the nomination for County Commissioner, subject to the decision of the Republican county convention.

Col. D S Dunham is a candidate for the Republican nomination for county commissioner. It is to be hoped that he will receive it as he would make one of the best officers the county ever had in that line.

We are authorized to announce the name of D. P. Shope, of Boggs township, as a candidate for nomination for County Commissioner, subject to the decision of the Republican county convention.

TREASURER.

We are authorized to announce the name of E Tyson, of Philipsburg, as a candidate for the nomination for County Treasurer, subject to the decision of the Republican county convention.
